POLITICAL POINTERS

Which Have Some Reference to the Late Elections.

NEW YORK OUT IN THE COLD

So Far as the President's Patronage Is Concerned.

EX-GOVERNOR ALONZO B. CORNELL

Thinks That Blaine Is the Coming Man for the Republican Leadership. Other Political News.

WASHINGTON, November 6.—[Special.]— The widely circulated report that Senator Hiscock is to be secretary of war, to succeed Red-field Proctor, is regarded in Washington not only as improbable but as ridiculous. In advance of a settlement of the question of the olitical complexion of the New York legislature, it would be premature for the president to suggest him for the vacancy at the head of the war department. There at present exists a lack of harmony among the New York republicans, and the president will not at present select any leading New Yorker for a prominent place. If it should prove that the next legislature in New York will be democratic, it is ridiculous to assume that the president would think of appointing a republican senator whose shoes would be immediately filled by a democrat.

The Pending Appointments The pending appointments, including the ecretaryship of war, are many and important, but all are expected to go over until congress assembles next month. There are nine circuit judges, two interstate commerce commissioners, a judge of the court of claims and a minister to China to appoint, d before December there may also be a min-Ister to Chile to add to the list.

of Georgia, may be named as an interstate commerce commissioner before the meeting of congress, as his appointment has already been decided upon.

HE IS FOR BLAINE.

What Ex-Governor Alonzo B. Cornell Has to Say.

MIDDLESBOROUGH, Ky., November 6 .-[Special.]—Ex-Governor Alonzo B. Cornell, of New York, arrived here this morning to spend a few days. He said to your correspondept that he was the last republican executive of the empire state, and he was surprised and unprepared to hear of the result of the recent elections in New York, and especially in Massachusetts and Iowa.

Doesn't Believe in McKinley. After speaking at some length of the corrup-tive and unfair methods adopted by Senator Platt, of New York, at the convention which nominated Folger for governor, he was asked for an opinion upon the possibilities of McKinley becoming the republican candidate for the presidency in 1892. The ex-governor replied that the Ohio election meant nothing of special signineance, and that McKinley will not and could not leom up as a serious or formidabe presidential candidate. When pressed for a reason he added with considerable irony, that the man whose name commenced with Mc would never be the nomnee of either of the great parties, nor could l

The ex-governor is a firm believer in James G. Blaine, and with great warmth said that if the "plumed knight" were nominated he would carry New York by 50,000 majority, and make a clean sweep of all the northern states. Mr. Cornell is now entirely out of politics, so he says. KANSAS FOR BLAINE.

The Republican Leaders of That State Want to Drop Harrison.

TOPEKA, Kan., November 6 .- [Special.]-The recent elections in New York, Massachu setts, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Iowa have ed a great deal of presidential talk among the leaders of both parties.

Blaine has always been the choice of the Kansas republicans, but the recent elections have stimulated the sentiment, and nearly every republican is for him. Tonight quiet meeting is being held by a few leading republicans of the state to start a movement for Blaine and McKinley for 1892. It is surprising the number of republicans who have announced their names as their choice. The meeting tonight is attended by prominent re-publicans, who are desirous of forming Blaine and McKinley clubs over the state, a pare to send a solid delegation to the next convention for these leaders. It is claimed that in the event of Mr. Blaine's death, a man his peer as a leader would succeed to the presidency, and that such a ticket would win against all combinations.

WHAT SENATOR PALMER SAYS.

Flower's Victory Means a New York Man

as Democratic Candidate for President. SPRINGFIELD, Ill., November 6 .- Senator elect Palmer, democrat, credits the democrati defeat in Ohio largely to the silver plank in the democratic platform. Senator Palmer thinks the results in most of the states show that the protective tariff is not popular with them and he attaches much impo lemocratic victories in New York, Iowa, Maryland and Massachusetts. "The election of Flower in New York," he pivotal state in 1892; that New York will be the key to the situation ,and that a New York man will be nominated by the democratic party for president."

WATCHING THE RETURNS

To Ascertain the Complexion of the New York Legislature.

New York, November 6 .- Every politician in the state is now figuring on the political complexion of the next legislature, as should the democrats control both branches it is admitted that the first thing done would be the redistricting of the state. Both parties are claiming majorities in each branch, but the latest returns received by the Associated Press indicate that the senate will stand: Republicans, 17: democrats, 14: independent republicans, 1. According to the same returns, the assembly will stand: Republicans, 60; democrats, 66; independent democrats, 2. Some Peculiar Incidents.

Election figures show that the total vote cast this year was 33,463 less than in 1888. Flower received a little over 8,100 less than Hill; Fassett 23,100 less than Miller. The total vote cast this year was 238,537, of which Flower received 61 per cent, Fassett 36 per cent, and the other two candidates between them 2 2-3 per cent. A noticeable feature in this city is that the democrats have lost most in the districts which, in 1888, gave Hill a large plurality.

In districts where Fassett kept close to Miler's figures, Flower ran far behind the figures of Hill. On the other hand, Flower gained nost where Fassett was expected to do well Nebraska Election Returns.

OMAHA, Neb., November 8 .- Official returns OMAHA, Nob., November 6.—Official returns from sixty-three counties, exclusive of Douglas, out of ninety counties in the state, show the total vote for Post to be $49,781; for Edgerton, 50,329. These same counties last year gave Richards, 51,735; Boyd. 37,857; Powers, 53,048; indicating a falling off in the total vote of 42,525. Douglas county, with one precinct in the city of Omaha missing, gives Post a majority over Edgerton of 6,351. Careful estimates of counties not heard from officially, based on partial returns, give Post a plurality of 4,741. This will probably be increased by the official count, and it is safe to say that Edgerton is defeated by between 5,000 and 6,000 votes. and 6.000 votes.

OVER SIX THOUSAND KILLED. An Official Telegram About the Earthquake in Japan. WASHINGTON, November 6 .- A telegram from the Japanese government received today by Mr. Tateno, Japanese minister, gives an account of the earthquake in Japan on October 28th. It seems from this authenticated report that the damage caused by the earthquake was confined almost entirely to the prefectures of Aichi and Gifu, the former of which is on the sea about one hundred and seventy miles from Tokio, and the latter imnediately to the west. Vagoya is the chief city in Aichi prefecture, and has a population of 150,000. There are no very large cities in Gifu prefecture. No mention is made of any damage in any other parts of Japan. According to the telegram 6,500 persons were killed; 9,000 injured, and 75,000 houses totally destroyed and 1,200 badly damaged.

He Could Open All Locks. He Could Open All Locks.

Bridgeport, Conn., November 5.—Alfred C. Hobbs, formerly general manager of the Union Metallic Cartridge Company, died early this morning from exhaustion, the result of brain affection. Hobbs has a national reputation on account of his wonderful lock-picking performances. In 1851 he went to London to attend the world's fair, and it was at this time that he picked the famous Chubb & Brahman locks, a feat that created great excitement in England. He was at one time in charge of Howe's sewing machine factory, but since 1886, until two years ago, has been manager of the eartridge company.

Washington, November 6.—The mayor of Savannah, Ga., with committee of aldermen and citizens, called at the white house this afternoon and invited the president and cabinet to visit Savannah during the winter as guests of the municipality and citizens.

The president responded, and said, that he could make no promises, as he anticipated he would be very busy during the coming session of congress, yet he would keep the invitation in mind and do his best to accept it.

The invitation was presented in informal shape, but the delegation did not make any set speeches. The call was an informal one, the president receiving the visitors in the cabinet room on his way to his office from luncheon.

The committee was composed of Senator Colquitt. Mayor McDonough, Aldermen Bailey, Charlton, Bryan, Citizens Purse, Young, Rebarrer and O'Byrne.

THE BEARS PULLED IT DOWN. Dealings in Futures on the New York Cotton Exchange

New York, November 6.—The Sun's cotton review says: Cotton futures opened at a sharp decline, partially recovered, again declined, closing steady at seven to nine points decline. The most conspicuous feature of the market today was the manner in which it stood up under a combinathe manner in which it stood up under a combination of bearish influences that is seldom brought against any great staple. The early decline was due to a drop of three to five sixty-fourthis in the Liverpool market, under which March contracts receded to eight forty-one. Then came natural buying to cover contracts, on which there was a recovery to eight and forty-one hundredths. Then the interior movement came into play. Receipts at interior movement came into play. Receipts at interior towns proved to be materially in excess of the estimates, and stocks were very large. Under these influences prices receded to nearly the lowest figures of the moraing. The bears began to tread on perious ground.
Prices touched today for December about the lowest figures of the semi-panic lat summer.
The decline from the highest figures in October is 125 points. They must not forget the incident in recent years, when a storm on the day before Thanksgiving caused an advance of fifty points a day after. They are exposed to just such a twist now. Prices may recede another twenty-five points, but they are quite as likely to advance 100 points. So, the bears stand in the position of

MORE TROUBLE AT COAL CREEK .-Miners Out on Strike for a Check-Weigh-

NASHVILLE, Tenn., November 6.—The miners in the Coal Creek district are still in a ferment. Their releasing the convicts does not seem to have satisfied them, and unless other demands made by them are conceded by the operators, a big strike may occur. Yesterday the men employed in the Thistle mine, which is operated by the East Tennessee Mining Company, demanded a checkweighman. Chattaneoga's Contingent.
CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., November 6.—[Special.]—During the past four days a total of eighty-eight escaped convicts from the Briceville mines have been temporarily guarded in the county and city jails here. They were picked up by officers in this and adjacent counties, and for the most part seem glad of the prospect of getting back to their former positions as convicts. During the few days intervening between their escape and capture many of the zebras report having experienced untold suffering from cold and hunger. All of the convicts were sent to Nashville tonight.

The Strike Declared Off. Sr. Louis, November 6.-The strike that has been or in progress at the tinplate department of the St. Louis (Niedringhouse) Stamping Co.'s mill has been efficiently declared off by Ivory Lodge Amalgamated Association of iron and steel workers, and all men, including imported and skilled laborers, have returned to work. Messrs. Neidringhouse express themselves satisfied with the settlement.

THE MAVERICK BANK. Everything Waiting Until the Receiver Qualifies.

Boston, November 6 .- The affairs of the Maverick bank are being straightened out as fast as possible under the circumstances. Matters cannot be completely untangled until the receiver qualifies and assumes his duties, and until the loans, assets and claims are classified and scheduled. Examiner Ewer is accumulating the money for checks received since the bank's suspension, and it is expected that this will be released when the receiver takes charge. The money tn bank at the time of charge. The money to bank at the time of closing its doors has been overstated. The gold and legal tenders amount to $1,000,000, the miscellaneous funds to $150,000, and the exchange for clearing to $300,000, or a total of nearly one million five hundred thousand dollars. There was very little money in New York in the bank's account.

District Attorney Allen, in an argument before Judge Nelson today on the question of bail for the Maverick bank officers, said he received a statement from Examiner Ewer that tion in regard to the industrial progress of the south, in which he says:

The south is developing rapidly, and her manufacturing possibilities cannot be exaggerated. The south's cotton mills used last ye r over six hundred thousand bales of the 2,400,000 consumed by the United States. In 1880 the south took only 180,000 bales. Of the 9,000,000 tons of iron produced last year, the south contributed 2,000,000 tons, or more than the production of the union in 1860. England fell behind our country last year 500,000 tons. As one of the most encouraging evidences of the south's industrial progress, she produced last year nearly one-fourth the amount of iron produced in Great Britain.

The figures given are approximately ecreed. The south's inture for the manufacture of control is assured. Her production of, iron and manufacture thereof offered profitable fields for investment. That the pressure of official duties should deprive us of the pleasure of welcoming you to Augusta and our exposition is a matter of disappontment and regret to our fellow-citizens, as well as to the directors and officers of the Augusta Exposition Company, who are under obligations for the official sanction extended to our enterprise, and for the personal and official courtesy extended during their visit to Washington. ceived a statement from Examiner Ewer that Messers. Potter, French and Dana owed the Maverick bank over two million five hundred thousand dollars. He further stated that the examiner said that among the assets of the bank were found notes endersed by the three accused directors, the promissories of which could not be found, and whom he believed did not exist. The bail of French has been reduced to $60,000, and John Stetson went on the bond, French being released.

And the Election at Cork Passed Off Quietly.

BOTH FACTIONS CLAIM THE VICTORY.

The Women Tender an Ovation to William O'Brien,

AND LAY THEIR SHAWLS ON THE GROUND For Him to Walk Upon-The Vote Not

Yet Counted-Boxes Guarded by the Police. Conk, November 6 -At the polls today will be decided questions of great importance as to whether the Parnellites are to remain in power in Irish politics, or whether the Mc-Carthylte forces, with their priestly cham-pions, are to "rule" Ireland, and whether or not there is to be union in the Irish parlia mentary forces, for it's claimed if the Par-nellites are defeated today union is possible before the general election, while if they are victorious, union is said to be beyond the ounds of possibility. bounds of possibility.

Contrary to general expectations, the polling opened quietly. The election is for a successor to Parnett in parliament, the candidates being John E. Redmond, the acknowledged leader of the Parnellites, and Martin Flavin, a McCarthy butter merchant. The priests have made a house to house canvass of the voters, following immediately after the Parnellite canvassers, and threatening the electors with all sorts of horrible things if they voted for Redmond or failed to vote for Flavin.

Guarded by Police.

Guarded by Police. In order to avert possible disaster, the polls this morning were strongly guarded by squads of police, who had come prepared for any of police, who had come prepared for any emergency. There were the usual scenes attending a closely contested election. The Mc-Carthyites are more confident than the others. At the close of the politing, Flavin was generally credited with victory. The poli bosses were escorted from outlying districts by troops and police. The counting of ballots will commence in the morning. The polling was heavy. Even the lame and blind were sought out and brought up to the polling places. It has been noticeable that in the many altercations between the priests and Parnellites, the women in most cities sided with the priests. William O'Bren received an ovation from the women, who presented him with flowers, and even divested themselves of their shawls for him to walk upon.

The supporters of Flavin claim a majority of 1,200 for him, while the Parnellites believe they carried the election by 100.

DEFENDING MRS. PARNELL.

Mr. Harrison Waiting to Lick Timothy Healey.

London, November 6.—[Copyright, 1891, by the New York Associated Press.]—The au-thorized explanation sent to the Gladstonian Boulogne negotiations will only serve to confirm the suspicion that Mr. Gladstone's old parliamentary hand has been once more working in the darkness, trying to win the adhesion of the solid Irish party. While keeping the terms of the bargain secret, O'Brien's statements are declared by the liberal leaders to be absurd misrepresentations. It is absolutely denied that the liberal leaders gave McCarthy or any other negotiator any assurance as a basis for a secret covenant. There was no such covenant, it is said, and every-published as from the housetops. The official denials are so wrapped up in verbal quibbles as to be deprived of the force inherent in decent and honest contradiction. Criticising the Leaders. The unionists revel in personal criticisms of the leaders on each side in the Cork election contest. Redmond describes O'Brien as acting the part of a bogus peacemaker and fighting for his own hand. Patrick O'Brien states that William O'Brien privately denounced Dillon as aiming at the leadership, and said that if Dillon had remained in America he would have been able to bring about a reunion. "Self-seekers first and patriots a long way afterward" was the burden of the compliments exchanged by the opposing factions.

T. M. Healy has got to face a worse encounter than the one he had with McDermott.

Harrison Defends Mrs. Parnell. Henry Harrison, member of parliament for Tipperary, warned Healy that if he repeated Tipperary, warned Healy that if he repeated his insulting allusions to Mrs. Parnell, he would take the law into his own hands and punish Healy. Healy, in repeating his references to Mrs. Parnell, added that he would not mince words in dealing with the matter because she had found a protector in Harrison, who had declared his readiness to vindicate her bonor. Harrison, who is of athlesic build, will bide his time to get at Healy. He is now constantly watched by the police.

Finest Wine Crop for Many Years -- Gossip

from the Vatican. Rome, November 6 .- The news from Paris that the council of ministers has decided to abolish differential duties now levied in France against Italian products, has given the greatest satisfaction to the people of Italy. This measure has been taken even before the new tariff laws are to go into force, not only for economical reasons, but also as proof that France desires hereafter the most cordial re-France desires hereafter the most cordial relations with Italy. The importance of this measure to the agriculturists of Italy can hardly be overestimated. France had been for many years their chief customer, until the beginning of the tariff war, which is now to cease, and the sudden closing of her market, especially to Italian wines, added seriously to the criese that have produced so much misery the last few years. The wine crop of 1891 is now about completed. Reports from every part of the country testify to its abundance. It is even said that in many sections it will be almost an impossibility to provide the casks and barrels necessary for its transportation. With a ready market for this enormous crop, and with the crops of cereals considerably above the average, Italy ought, during the coming year, to enter upon a new period of The Pope in Good Health. The health of the pope continues to be ex-cellent and, notwithstanding his eighty-four years, he seems to be as flourishing as for a Complete order prevails, and the usual amount of business is being transacted. Exchange is firm and improving. The government has ceased to interfere with any telegrams, and the general impression is that a revolution is not likely to occur. The prosperity of the country is entirely unimpaired by the recent occurrences.

Fonseca Compelled to Accept. LONDON, November 6.—Advices received by The Times today from Rio Grande do Sul deciare that the army and navy compelled President Fonseca to assume the dictatorship, and that there is great excitement in the province of Rio Grande do Sul, where the late events at Rio Janeiro are considered to be but the prelude to the restoration of the empire. The Times' dispatch continues: "The latter is not yet certain, but personal observation in 1840 induced the suspicion that the change to a republic was only personal observation in 1830 induced the sus-picton that the change to a republic was only a cloak to cover the ambition of certain dema-gogues and not the desire of the nation. have engendered universal discontent and was a precursor of the present cataclasm."

North Brazil is decidedly in favor of empire, and only in central Brazil is the republic popular. This may lead to Dom Pedro's grandson becoming chief of state under the regency of three prominent citizens, representing the northern, southern and central provinces and insuring the units of Brazil.

Would Not Stand a Dicatorship.

Paris, November 6.-The Brazilian minister here, in an interview today, said:
"The Brazilians will never accept a dictatorship, and President Fonseca will not dream of it. If he did, I should resign and ally myself with the party that would seek to over-throw, even by violent means, such a dictator-ship. Martial law has not been preclaimed in self with the party that would seek to overthrow, even by violent means, such a dictatorship. Martial law has not been proclaimed in the provinces, because there are no monarchists there. Martial law has been proclaimed only in Rio Janeiro as a protection against monarchist attempts at a restoration of the empire. From experience obtained when iDom Pedro was dethroned, congress its aware that it cannot depend upon the support of either the army or navy.
If it could, it might imitate Chile and seek to fight President da Fonseca.

"The troops remain faithful because they fear monarchical menace lurking behind eventual success for congress.

"President Fonseca is ill and has neither the will nor power to menace the existence of the republic. Brazilian finances are in good order. There is enough money deposited in London to meet all expenses abroad for the next nine months."

When, asked "What if identically the same congress should be re-elected?" the minister replied that he had no fear but that the election would turn in favor of the government.

He Indulges in Religious Exercises, and Then Dresses for the Hanging-The Respite That Never Can SANDERSVILLE, Ga., November 6 .- [Special.]—The first legal hanging in Washington county since 1831 occurred here today, when Tom Webb, colored, paid the death for committing rape on a ten-year-old white girl last March.

He was convicted at the last September term of the superior court and remanded to the Macon jail for safe keeping. He was brought here last Monday by Sheriff Wall and placed in the county jail and has been closely guarded by detachments from the Washington rifles.

Spiritual advisers, both white and black, have frequently visited the condemned man, and he gained peace for his soul under the in fluences of their prayers and pleadings. The execution was ordered by the court to be private, but that did not prevent a large crowd from assembling around the jailyard and peer ing at the doomed man's cell.

Early this morning your correspondent went to the jail, and by the per-mission of the sheriff, was permitted to enter the cell. Very soon Rev. W. C. Shelton came, and after casually conversing with Tom, asked him to kneel with him in prayer The Praying in the Cell.

After taking Tom's case before the great white throne, he sang the hymn, "Glory to His Name." Tom joined in the song, and there was not a tremor in his voice to indicate fear at his approaching doom. Before the singing was finished, Rev. Isaac Brown was admitted to the cell, and by request of Rev. Shelton, offered a fervent prayer for the pris oner. After the prayer Rev. Shelton read a portion of the fourteenth chapter of the gospel ecording to St. John, and expatiated on it for the benefit of the prisoner.

"Tom, what I wish to bring to your mind and heart is that every good and blessing comes from Jesus, and I beseech you to throw yourself upon him and let not your heart be

"Am I a Soldier of the Cross" was next sung in common meter. The hymn was lined and sung. Tom seemed to take great delight in After finishing the hymn Rev. Shelton offered a most soul-stirring prayer. Tom, during the whole prayer, kept both hands in his breeches peckets. During the prayer Tom seemed deeply impressed, and his lips moved as if in silent prayer, and he would moan and groan and say amen. The next hymn sung was "Nearer My God to Thee." Tom joined in the singing with a feeling of happiness. Rev. Shelton, before leaving the cell, asked Tom how he felt. Tom replied: "I don't dread anything they are going to do. I believe in a savior, and believe he will save me." The minister bade Tom farewell, and left the jail.

The prisoner said he did not sleep well las night on account of the death watch light in the jail corridor. Mr. Wall, the sheriff, came in the cell after the ministers left, and asked Tom what time did he wish it to take place Tom replied:

'I want it put off just as long as possible, but I am ready to go." Tom's Last Breakfast.

Tom's last breakfast consisted of steak, biscuit, fried potatoes and preserves. Your correspondent looked at a piece of meat in the plate and asked Tom if he liked ham. He looked at the plate, laughed and said, "That is nothing but fried meat." The prisoner said he never believed that he would die on a sick bed, but would be killed in a railroad or be shot, but did ink he would be hung. accident

A Close Shave.

Edom Mathis clipped his hair. He asked him if he wanted his hair cut close. Tom said "Yes, cut it close." As soon as the barber left Tom took a bath and donned his last snit of clothes, which was furnished by the county. It was a black corkser w suit, and cost $11.25, including underwear, shirt, collar and shoes. The coat and vest measured 37 inches the pants were 32x33. The shoes were branded "all solid shoes." The collar was a turndown, four ply known as "despatch." The shirt d the prisoner was a No. 16 and he wore a black bow. While dressing, his half brother, Moses Webb, called to see him and asked Tom was he ready to die. Tom said he was. Moses said he was glad to hear it. Tom remarke that he had watched them put up the gallows

At 1 p. m. the Washington Rifles arrived at the jail under command of Captain Watkins. Tom refused his dinner; said he did not fee like eating. He was nervously walking in his cell; occasionally he knelt and prayed. The sheriff and his deputies entered the cell. Deputy Will Rawlins put the handcuffs on the prisoner. The march to the gallows then began. The prisoner was supported by two colored ministers. When the prisoner reached the gallows a note was handed to the sheriff from Colonel G. N. Gilmore, which read as Waiting for a Respite. The sheriff waited thirty minutes in order to give the prisoner every chance for a respite. While the sheriff was walting to get further information from Colone Gillmore, the prisoner's lawyer, the preachers and Tom Webb occupied the time in singing and praying. The sheriff said:

"Tom, you have seven minutes more." Tom replied: "All right, sir." Then he knelt over a chair and offered a most fervent

At 3:49 o'clock the noose was adjusted. Tom's pulse was eighty to the minute. Benediction by W. C. Shelton. As soon as amer was spoken the trap was sprung. In eleven minutes his pulse had ceased to beat. After thirty minutes hanging his body was cut down and placed in a plain poplar coffin, and turned over to friends. The prisoner displayed great nerve, and stated to the last that the brothers of the girl knew he was criminally intimate with their sister, and if he had not diseased her, he would never have been arrested.

He was stealing a ride on the cars, sitting on the baggage car steps with his companion, Sim Coleman, coming from Savannah, where they had been at work during the great strike, and were returning to their homes in South Carolina. They both jumped off when the conductor opened the door. Sim Coleman's right arm was broken, his head cut and his right leg was badly bruised. Wash Goode fell under the train, his head was caught in the frog of the switch and the crown of the skull mashed off. The entire brains were emptied out on the crossties and the skull was left with nothing at all inside, it being perfectly empty and making a most horrible and sickening spectacle. that chivalric pe riod, the dawn of the seventeenth century-a period rich in love and legends, when every man was a soldier, and the sword was the only stepping stone to honor, fortune or a lady's favor.

A pleasure-loving people who spent their days in fighting and their nights over the dice box and flagon. This was the environment into which our intropid young Gascon was launched at the age of eighteen, with no heritage but his trusty sword, "Bobby," and his father's advice, "Fear the king, obey M. de Treville and never refuse to fight."

Endowed by nature with a magnificent physique, a handsome face of Roman type, and a rich musical voice he made a perfect dare-devil and portrayed this difficult character in a way that will cause it to live in the minds of all who saw it.

Secure in his own high position he has not neglected to surround himself with stars of the first magnitude-artists especially fitted for their different roles, so that nothing stiff or amateurist marred the production.

After young Salvini comes Miss Selena Fetter as Anne of Austria, the unhappy and neglected queen of Louis XIII. As the wretched, unloved and unloving wife, she was strong and natural, while in many places she was regal in her sarcasm and scorn-every inch a queen. Miss Augusta de Forrest, as Lady de Winter, made a splendid adventuress of that scheming, unscrupulous type peculiar to those times, but under all her intriguing treachery she was still a mother. Mr. Ben Johnson, as Richelien, was a good inspersonation of the "sly old fox," and Mr. Ed-ward Royle as Buckingham, was all that could be expected of the courtly, but dessolute George Villiers.

Then came the three musketeers—Athos Porthos and Aramis—"one for all and all for one." A jollier trio of conceited, but fearless fellows could not be conceived. In a word, the whole cast was excellent, and the scenery picturesque and appropriate.

The house witnessing this performance was a "standing-room only." The audience was in perfect sympathy with the players, and re-peatedly called Mr. Salvini and his support before the curtain.

The speaker was Macon Eager, who was in company with Frank Manot.

Both men were on a pleasure trip through the Rocky mountains of Colorado. They had left New York a month before, and had traveled mostly on horseback through rough parts of the mountains, where only the Indians or the enterprising engineers dared venture.

The day was closing. The western sky seemed melted into a sea of gold that plunged and writhed in waves of burned light, baptilizing in its billows the peaks of a thousand mountains, whose snow-crested brown caught the prismatic glory of the setting sur "Mount Princeton," one of the highest pea one of the highest peaks of

For several minutes the men rode on in silence, when suddenly Eager halted and pointed beyond and exclaimed with enthusiasm: "There is the grandest view of all. It surpasses the Yosemite or anything in the Alps. I'd rather pitch my tent right here in the valley of the Arkansas, than pend the rest of my life in the Parisian ourts. "Amen!" sarcastically responded his companion. "Eager, stop your crashy sermonizing and come on. I'm freezing, man! A view into the New Jerusalem could not tempt me now,' and, drawing closely his collar about his face, he rode briskly forward.

These two men, although congenial friends of years' standing, were very different in temperment and character.

Macon was cold, selfish and satirical, while Eager was impulsive, generous and arthreliants. enthusiastic. "We must not forget Millet, however," said Manot. "In would be just like you to go through the country seeking the girl just to please the old man. Hurry up. Eager, my boy, I'm nearnest now. I'm numb with cold," and he shook his hands vigorously to renew the circulation.
Just at that moment the air rang with a voice clear and strong, like that of some wild bird,

"We stole the red man's home, And a tommy-hawk big has he Tra lal la!"

Tra lal la "

"That's Millet sure—listen!" cried Eager.
Scarcely had he spoken, when there above, on a projecting ledge, stood a young girl, tall and erect, with a cloud of dusky hair floating about her. The buckskin jacket and crimson skirt seemed suited to the rustic beauty of the girl as she poised like some wild, graceitul animal above the precipied. "Well, sirs," she cried, "if this don't beat all. how'd you know I was Millet, stranger? Every body knows me; that's what Jim Bilay and pa says, but they meant all the folks about the gulch, and in these hills and at the mines; but you two ain't them sort?"

ort?"
Much amused, Eager listened to the girl. At the anne time taking her arm tenderly, he wound around it his soft silk handkerchief as she rat-"Eager, come on," cried Manot who had gone on for some distance. "I am freezing, while you are making a fool of yourself overonly a rancher's daughter. I'll wait no longer," and silently he rode on.

Millet struck an attitude of insulted dignity, Millet struck an attitude of insulted dignity, and looking at the retreating form of Manot, pointed at him with the scorn of a tragic queen. "Only a rancher's daughter!" she mockingly said, "and who is he? Some weak-hearted, pale-faced coward, I guees. I could give the Indian yell: and scare him to death. If he was not your friend I would. Whew! how he would run!" and she laughed the same ringing laugh that made the mountains echo, and that Eager thought the most beautiful music he had ever heard.
"De you mean that it is because you like we ever heard.

"De you mean that it is because you like me that you will not make him think an Indian is pursuing him with a tommyhawk?" said Eager, as he pressed the little hand gently that he still held, and looked with genuine admiration into the upturned face of the girl. Millet gazed at him full in the eyes, and with innocent candor revised:

"Millet! Millet!" and the air echoed with the in the grey growing twilight.

"Yes, pa, "I'm coming," cried the girl, and quickly catching Eager's hand she kissed it and diarted away like a phantom in the shadows.

Eager stood for some moments before mounting his horse and looked until the girl was lost to

"Well," said he to himself, "she is a combination of simplicity, generosity, ignorance and courage. She is a medley oficontradictions, and with all, the most bewitching little beauty I ever met.
I may be, as Manot called me, a fool, but I swear I hate to leave the child," and as he slowly mounted his horse and rode on he almost forgot his companion, so filled was his mind with the wild beauty and candid innocence of the girl.

When he overtook Manot, a few miles from Buena Vista, Eager was silent and his companion's sneering allusions to the "wild girl" grated on him. Had it not been an act of madness and folly he would have turned back and followed the little figure, with her crown of midnight hair and starry eyes, but he dared not. In his dreams that night he saw her mounted on her prancing "Black Bess," that she had so willingly offered him, racing through the forests, chasing the antelopes over the plains, and as she neared a precipice he over the plains, and as she neared a precipice he awoke with a cry.

That night and many others he saw in the midst of dreamland the sweet, oval face and the little bruised arm, and felt the quick warm kiss on his hand, but as the years passed he ceased to dream, and the dissipations of life allured him on until he was launched in the current of a career that is sure to petrify the heart and deaden the soul.

The gay social season was at its height in New The gay social season was at its height in New York. The year was near its close, and the wealth and fashion of the city were in a state of rivalry. Frank Manot was a social lion. Courtly and polished, with an ample fortune to entertain generously and elegantly, he easily attained that position. He and Eager were ever seen together, as in the years of their early manhood, until it was noticed on many occasions that Manot was alone—and he began to seek new companions. It was rumored that the handsome Eager had staked too high on a game and had lost. In a short period of a few months he drifted from wealth into obscurity, and from the vortex of fashion he was lost and soon forgotten; but the cruel world moved on, while Manot remained on the upper wave of prosperity and popularity.

"By Jove! of all fellows Manot is the most

"By Jove! of all fellows Manot is the most fortunate," exclaimed one of a group at the opera of "Fra Diavolo," where the most brilliant crowd of the season was gathered, and a dozen loringnetts were leveled at the box where Frank Manet sat, bending in evident admiration over a woman of marvelous beauty. She reclined in graceful abandon, and her dark lanquid loveliness was enhanced by a dazzle of jewels that blazed about her like icebergs beneath the sun.
"Who is she?" cried voices everywhere, and in a moment this beautiful stranger, who had shot like a meteor into the very heart of the gay social whirl, was the object of attention. "She's too dark," said one woman. "She has a languid, too dark," said one woman. "She has a languid, abandon air that is vulgar," said another. But the men in unison uttered the verdict that she was the most marvelous beauty who had ever dazzled the metropolis.

was the most marvelous beauty who had ever dazzled the metropolis.

From that night she was the rage. Millet Daring, the Cattle King's only daughter, and the heiress to millions, became the queen of society. Her original vagaries, her dashing demeanor, her utter disregard for social amenities were all pardoned beneath her loveliness and her wealth. Behind a pair of jet black ponies, she could be seen dashing through the park, while again she would plunge at Mazeppa-like speed through the public drives. Yet her name was never sullied even by the most envious. Men worshiped her and in vain bowed at her shrine. On all she smiled alike and held in the tendrils of her magnetism all who came beneath the power of her witchery. It was said that Manot was the favored one. He who had never acknowledged the power of any woman, openly avowed his adoration for this dark mountain beauty, "Star of the West," as she was called. One evening while Manot was in company with Millet, she suddenly exclaimed: "If you would prove your love for me find my friend—this is his card. I have treasured it since I was a child in prove your love for me find my friend—this is his card. I have treasured it since I was a child in my far western home. I have asked many of my friends to find him for me but with no satisfaction. Will you, Mr. Manot, help me to find him?" And as she handed Manot the card he suddenly changed color. "Macon Eager!" he exclaimed. "Why, where did you know him? Once he was my most intimate friend and associate, but he became reckless and worthless, so we have drifted apart. He is only a bank clerk now, and he was once a rich man. You have often heard me speak of my tour through your loved Rockies, when Eager was my companion, and the most enthusiastic man you ever saw. He rayed over everything he saw, from a saw. He raved over everything he saw, from a kyote to the wild mountain maiden. Why kyote to the wild mountain maiden. Why, one evening he spent an hour in consoling an ignorant, awkward girl, because she fell and scratched her arm. His soft, weak heart was his ruination, but we waste time my beautiful queen.
"Tell me, will you marry me," and falling before her he caught the jeweled hands of the woman he adored and by every phase of affection and idolarty besought her to return his mad, mastering passion.

adored and by every phase of affection and idolatry besought her to return his mad, mastering passion.

A new light seemed to dawn over the face of Millet. "Oh! I see now," she exclaimed almost inaudibly, "It is all so plain now I remember," and with sudden dignity she arose and it seemed towered higher in her pride and beauty. A look of scorn came into her face as she hanghtily and mockingly exclaimed, with a wavo of her arm: "Rise! Frank Manot, you are making a fool of yourself over only the Ramcher's Daughter.

"Go" she exclaimed, "my revenge is sweet and complete. When I was an ignorant, innocent child in the cabin near the gulch of the beautiful valley of the Arkansas—when I fell wounded at your feet you scorned me and passed on in your pride and selfishness. The heart that was so worldly, so unmanly, so cowardly as to desert the humble, wounded grif of the ranch is unworthy to touch the hand of the Star of the West—the Cattle King's only daughter." And with the same silvery laugh that had often made the canyons echo and the wild-beast calm—that same laugh rang down the curtain of destiny over the life of Frank Manot, as he left the presence of the only woman he ever loved, and went out into the darkness with crumbled pride and a broken heart.

The winter was almost over. Millet Daring, has been arrested for embezzlement. The banking house of Lyons & Son, in whose employ he has been for the past year, prosecutes him for the amount of $5,000. His failure to return this amount will condemn him to imprisonment, etc.,

An hour later a tall, veiled woman entered the banking house of Lyons & Son, and, handing a check to the astonished cashler, said: "Accept this amount in payment for the shortage of money of which you accuse Macon Eager. Have him at once informed of his freedom for debt by the receipt for the amount that I now hand you. With it enclose this note," and on a slip of paper the following lines she wrote: "The soar remains on my arm still, in memory of that noble, manly act of yours five years ago.

"The RASCHER'S LITTLE DAUGHTER," "At the Gulch."

That night a peace and joy stole in the heart of Millet Daring, that she had never known before. The eyes with their sapphire light had aroused her first aspirations to a new life that had never known tenderness before:

What at first had amused Eager now touched his heart with an emotion that made tears spring to his eyes, and awakened an admiration that he could not classify.

The best way to explain what the picker can do is to let experts tell it. Mr. Diamond, one of the most competent mechanical experts in New England, after seeing the exhibition yes. terday, said:

"I am satisfied that the picker is a success. I know it will pick the cotton, because I have seen it do so more than a half-dozen time. Improvements have been made in it, and each change has rendered the machine nearer perfect. There are only two or three defects of minor character and they can be easily remedied. It is granted by all, I believe, that the machine picks the cotton, and that is the problem to be solved—the saving of it is a very easy thing. Yes it is a success and a greatly success at that."

The testimony of Mr. Diamond desermanted careful consideration for the reason that he has studied cotton picking for several months and is familiar with the plan of many of the machines coming before the public, prior to machines coming before the public, prior to this one.

Mr. W. S. Van Winkle, whom The Cosmitution interviewed some weeks ago relative to the success of the Southern Harvester cotton picker, witnessed the exhibition yesterday. He endorsed the plan and says:

"From the first time I saw the Southern Harvester cotton picker, I was convinced that it was a success. I do not mean to say that the machine did its work perfectly the first time I saw it, but that the plan and design was on which when perfected would do the work for which it was intended. Several improvement have been made in it in the past month, and the exhibition given today at the exposition, shows that the picker is practically a success and will pick the cotton. It is true as explained by President Blum, that as more than one-fourth of the wire brushes were suitable for action in today's exhibition. The trouble can easily be overcome. In fact, a many brushes as may be needed can be conveniently placed on the machine, thus easily along the pick the thickest cotton with perfect ease. Mr. L. R. Turner, of Sing Sing, N. Y., who is also familiar with every part of mechanica is stopping with Mr. Van Winkle, superintending the construction of some cotton machinery for a few New England mills. He also saw the exhibition at the exposition grounds and said:

"The principle upon which the Southern Harvester cotton picker is built is a perfect one, and I rejoiced to find that one had at last come to the front promising rich results. The test today shows not a perfect machine, but one, with a faw slight improvement that one, with a few slight improvements, that vill do the work required. The great difficulty heretofore has been to devise a plan that vill successfully take the cotton from the foll.

That has been accomplished in this machina, as proven by today's exhibition, and the That has been accomplished in this Next year, when all of its defects will is been remedied, doubtless thousands of the machines will be sold, and a large per cent of the cotton will be picked by them.

The opinions of these gentlemen speak themselves, and, as the parties and acknowledged experts in the mechanical limit it is presumed they know what they are aping. The farmers and cotton growers allowed the south are anxiously waiting for these uschines, and it is thought that next year their hopes and dreams may be realized, and where only 100 pounds of cotton is picked today to one man, 5,000 can be gathered with the se of the picker. It is to be regretted that resident Blum did not compete for the gold mail. at the exposition. He says, however, that he was not here for the purpose of showing off his machine, but of testing it and letting the people see just what he had and what he will e able to furnish them next year.
Mr. D. M. Beil, a merchant and large co-

No matter how poor he is, a man afford to give this service to the public. I tel a pride in the city of Atlanta, and the conclusness of striving to perform my duty, and he honor attaching to my position, compense me fully for t e time and labor I give to he city. I have no idea that any member of his body was influenced in the slightest decree by the consideration of pay. We can ways get good men to serve the city for the henor of it. There is too much money pad for salaries, and not enough for public improvements. Any man who aspires to the position of alderman or councilman never considers compensation. It is bad policy to raise salaries. It is a mistaken public policy. A serious mistake. There are more important considerations than money. The people of Atlanta do not want this increase of salaries. They have spoken on that question. I wish to place myself on record as opposing this increase."

this increase."
Mr. Turner: "I do not believe that $600 is Mr. Turner: "I do not believe that $600 is too much to pay a member of the council, yet, if there is any doubt as to the validity of the ordinance, I am not disposed to insist upon it. If we do, as Mr. Rice asserts, violate the charter of the city, then I am willing to vote for Mr. King's ordinance. I would vote for the $600 if we could get it, but I am satisfied with the $400. We had better go slow right along here."

here." "I wish before a vote is taken to answer a few remarks made by Colonel Hulsey and Mr. Shropshire In the first place, I believe it is the best thing for Atlanta for us to adopt this ordinance. We had better stick to the law and not violate the charter. We may have got the equities, but it is doubtful if we have got the law. I confess I have changed my views on this question. I am going to resolve my doubts by doing what I think right. From what has been said there is no doubt that if this ordinance is adopted Mayor Hemphill will approve it." A motion was made to indefinitely postpone nays, 4.

Mr. King's resolution.

The vote resulted as follows: Yeas, 7;

Those who voted in the affirmative were:
Messrs. Tye, McBride, Sawtell, Hulsey, Hendrix, Murphey, Lambert.

drix, Murphey, Lambert.

Those who voted no were: Messrs. Kinyon, Turner, King and Holbrook.

Mr. Hendrix made a motion to reconsider the action of the council on the petition of James Loyd & Co., in allowing their billiard room to be kept open till 12 o'clock at night.

"I don't want to make flesh of some and fow! of others," said Mr. Hendrix. "If we are going to give them this privilege, why not give it to others. I move that the petition be tabled."

not give it to others. I move that the petition be tabled."

Mr. Hendrix's motion prevailed.

The report of the commissioner of public works for the mouth of October was read.

Mr. Hendrix, in connection with it, introduced the following:

That, whereas the commissioner of public works reports a number of streets graded and ready for carbing and sidewalks on which no curbing and sidewalks are lebing set or laid; and, whereas, in a short time these streets will be impassable unless carbing its set and sidewalks laid. Therefore, be it resolved, That the commissioner of public works and street committee be and they are hereby authorized to purchase brick and curbing and have them set or laid, and charge the cost thereof to the contractor for sidewalks and curbing.

air. Hendrix spoke briefly in support of this resolution. He said it should be adopted in the interest of the public. Some of the pavements are sadly in need of repairs, and in some places are well nigh impassable. The streets are graded all over Atlanta, and yet there are pavements upon which no bricks there are pavements upon which no bricks have been laid. "Are we," asked he, "to pander to a lot of contractors and let the peopander to a lot of contractors and let the people suffer for want of good pavements?"

Mr. Hulsey said he did not believe that any member of the council was pandering to any contractor. "So far as I am concerned, I do not as much as know the name of the contractor. Before voting for this resolution we ought to be sure we are doing the right thing. My idea is to refer the matter to the street committee, the members of which certainly are more conversant with the facts than we are. It would look hard for is to ignore the contractor and get brick elsens to ignore the contractor and get brick else-where. The proper thing for us to do is to refer the resolution to the street committee with power to act. And I so move."

Mr. Woodward said he objected to referring the resolution to the committee with power to act. It was giving the committee too much power. "The contractors," said he, "are do-power. "The contractors," said he, "are doing the best they can. They are keeping up well with their work, and I see no reason for taking any such radical action."

Mr. Lambert: "I am against interfering with the contractors, who, I know, are doing the best they can. They have lost some 500,000 brick by fire. This has put them back. Just as soon as they get through with the sewer work they will begin bricking the pavements."

Mr. Kinyon: "I am in favor of any course which will expedite the work and fix the sidewalks."

The resolution was adopted.

The Electric Railways.

The committee on electric lights made a re-port regarding the laying of two street car tracks over the Jones avenue bridge. Mr. Joel Hurt, president of the Atlanta Consolidated street railway, was given a hearing, and he stated that two tracks were necessary, and he suggested how the work should be done.

Mr. C. J. Simmons, of the Chattahoochee

Mr. C. J. Simmons, of the company, also made a statement.

The report was recommitted, as these two gentlemen intimated a purpose to make company, and agree to a compromise. Changing Their Names.

Mr. Lambert, chairman of the committee on streets, made a report recommending that the names of the following streets be changed: Ella street, from the Georgia railroad north, to be called Lynch street.

Henry street, from Elliott street to Davis Herry street, from Emott street to Davis street, to be changed to Tyler street.

Herbert street, from Simpson street to Bellwood, to be changed to Griffin street.

Wallace street, from Decatur north to the Richmond and Danville railroad, to be called Krog street.

Pear street, from Linden street to North avenue, to be called Nutting street.

Referred back to the street committee.

New Sewers. Mr. Hendrix, chairman of the sewer com mittee, introduced an ordinance providing for a sewer along Marietta street to Foundry street at a cost of $700; one along Decatur street at a cost of $2,000, and one on South Boulevard to cost not exceeding $1,300. This ordinance was passed

The Forsyth Street Bridge. A resolution was adopted ratifying the contract with the Phnoix Bridge Company for building the Forsyth street bridge, with the proviso that the company shall finish the bridge by July 1, 1892. A telegram was re-ceived from the company obligating itself to complete the work in the specified time.

Minor Matters. A communication was received from citizens of Capitol avenue stating their grievances regarding the Loyd street sewer, and was referred to the sewer committee.

A resolution adopted by the board of water commissioners touching the sites for the reservoir was adopted. On motion of Mr. Hutchison it was referred to the finance committee and beard of water commissioners, with instructions for them to make such negotiations as may be necessary to secure the property and as may be necessary to secure the property and as may be necessary to report to the council.

Mr. Hendrix introduced an ordinance prescribing the manner in which registration shall be conducted and providing for the punish-ment of those who violate the election laws. On motion of Mr. King, it was referred to the

On motion of Mr. King, it was referred to the ordinance committee.

Mr. C. A. Matlack, superintendent of the Atlanta Consolidated street railway, sent a committee to the council calling attention to the insecure condition of the Edgewood avenue bridge which crosses the Richmond and Danville railroad. He says:

"I have just been making an inspection of the Edgewood avenue bridge, crossing the Richmond and Danville tracks, and I find that the entire bridge is in a very dangerous Richmond and Danville tracks, and I find that the entire bridge is in a very dangerous condition. Something should be done about this immediately, as the bridge, in its present condition, is not safe to carry the travel over, which goes that way every day."

It was referred to the bridge committee.
The city comptroller's report was submitted. It shows an estimated expenditure of $543,-472.64

A petition from the Edison Electric Light

A petition from the Edison Electric Light Company for certain privileges was referred to the electric light committee.

Mrs. Belamy was given the privilege of reading a paper relative to changing the names of certain streets to Palm place.

Mr. S. A. McDonald sent in a petition asking for the transfer of a liquor license from No. 177 West Peters street to No. 157½ West Peters for a beer license at 509 Marietta street was adopted and the petition tabled.

Shortly after 7 o'clock the council adjourned.

A Bailiff Acquitted in the City Court. Other Matters of Gossip from the County Courthouse.

An interesting case was decided in the city court yesterday before Judge Van Epps. Lizzie McGivens brought suit against the Metropolitan railroad and the city of Atlanta for $5,000. On November 3, 1890, she was riding to the stockade in the Black Maria. When the vehicle reached Gullatt street on East Fair, one of the wheels ran off. The wagon broke down and was standing on the track, when a dummy came along. The steam caused in trying to slacken up prevented the engineer

All of the occupants except Lizzie McGivens escaped. She was badly hurt. In the city court yesterday she asked for the amount named, Mr. Frank Walker representing her. The case against the city was dismissed and that against the road was heard.

Our Phenomenal Weather.

Visitors from the northwest was have been in Atlanta during the Piedmont exposition are enthusiastic in their praise of our climate.

These strangers declare that they have found here an Indian summer far more delightful than their own. But the question has been asked: Have we an Indian summer? It has always been the general impression that this brief period of warm weather in the latter part of autumn was confined to the northwest. During recent years, however, it has been claimed by many that our climate is undergoing a change, and a part of the change is this extra summer which we have been enjoying for the past few weeks.

Here in Atlanta we are not so much interested in the old Indian summer controversy as we are in the weather itself. Heretofore nearly every fair or exposition held in this region in October or November was seriously interfered with by a number of cold and rainy days. This year has been a notable and brilliant exception. From first to last the exposition has had the favorable auspices of bright skies and warm southern breezes. Overcoats have rarely been needed, even in the early morning and at

If this sort of weather is to be one of our deading specialties in future, it is safe to say that the Piedmont exposition will loom up as one of the greatest attractions on the continent, and thousands of northerners will make an annual visit to it in order to enjoy the finest climate in the world. It is too early to make a prediction, but many people are strongly convinced that our climate is changing for the better. If they are right in their conclusions this entire Piedmont region will soon be known as the Italy of

Will the Grip Come Again?

The reappearance of the grip this season in a number of European centers of population has revived the theory that this disease can be traced to the annual religious pilgrimages to certain Russian shrines, where great crowds congregate under the worst possible sanitary conditions. An English writer savs:

Bucharest, Vienna and Berlin report that the influenza has once more appeared in those cities, and it is further said that it has become a sweeping epidemic in the interior of Russia. If, then it can be shown with any degree of reason that it owes its origin to the Russian pilgrimages, the at-tention of the civilized world should be called to the fact and measures of some sort be taken to prevent the annual spread of the affection. The idea which finds much favor in England is that the influenza is started in the cold and dirty huts of Russian peasants, and that it becomes epidemic at the shrines towards which the great companies of pilgrims make their way every year, the condi-tions of sanitation at these places being most unsatisfactory, and the people persistently neglecting the most common laws of health. The result is that the disease is spread, not among the Russian peasan s alone, but throughout the lands where peasan s alone, but throughout the lands where sanitary precautions are observed, the clean suffering with the unclean, and in some instances serious and even fatal results attending the pagation of the malady. At least, this is the theory presented, and it has much of probability to commend it to consideration.

If there is anything in this theory the large European cities would do well to subject the returning pilgrims from Russia to judicious quarantine regulations. Their presence in cities along the world's great lines of travel is a menace to mankind everywhere. After our experience with this de structive malady last year it is natural that the prospect of another visitation should be regarded as an appalling calamity.

Of course there is some hope of escaping the grip this winter, but no time should be lost in considering the methods and precautions which seem best calculated to secure our safety. Epidemics of cholera and yellow fever are not a bit more destructive than this fatal scourge has proved itself in the United States. If we can bar it out we had better study the situation, and begin our sanitary work at once.

The Passing of the Mugwump.

The democratic victory in New York demonstrates once more, and with an emphasis that cannot be mistaken, that cannot be misunderstood, the impotency of the mugwumps. In the municipal contest last year, they made a tremendous racket. But when the vote was counted it was found that the wonderful power and influence of the mugwumps had not materialized. They were not in it.

This year they made as much fuss as ever. All the little independent Johnnies got their guns and went out to hunt the tiger. But when the time came for voting they were missing, and they have not been heard of Editor Larry Godkin, who was since. astraddle of the fence, ought to know what became of the mugwumps, but he is not advertising their whereabouts.

The truth is, the whole tribe of them, with all their power and influence, is best represented by a cipher. They do not int. They do not help those they favor and they do not hurt those they oppose. There is not enough of them left in sight to say goodby to.

What It Means.

The New York World is of the opinion that it is best to look the facts square in the face, and there is certainly to be found in that method a reasonable amount of wholesome discipline. Our contemporary is not inclined to gloss over or belittle the result in Ohio, or to explain it by theories which are pleasant, if not plausible. The World goes straight to the bottom facts, and presents the case as follows:

The significance of Mr. McKinley's election is ly plain. It is the verdiet of the people of der. Bad literature is filling our as favor of that system of tariff taxation of jalls and graveyards. It would be be which Mr. McKinley is the foremost representa-tive. It makes of him a very conspicuous and in-fluential person in national affairs upon that side of the dominant question of the time.

That side is the wrong side, as The World believes, but Mr. McKinley's advocacy of it is at any rate sincere and courageous. He has made a perfectly frank and open campaign upon the issue. He made somewhat undignified use of clap-trap in his tinplate exploits, but he has made his canvass squarely upon the issue suggested by his name, and has frankly asked the people of his state to say whether he was right or nant question of the time cople of his state to say whether he was right or wrong, in their judgment, in his successful effort o embody extreme protectionism in law.

They have given judgment in his favor oderate majority. That is what the Ohio

A clear understanding of this fact will enable the democrats to concentrate their forces at points where they can fight effectively, instead of scattering them in an effort to carry on a campaign of education.

The Ten Per Cent Tax.

The Rand-McNally Bankers' Monthly, in its current issue, suggests that the states should make a unanimous demand on congress for the repeal of the 10 per cent tax on the circulation of state banks. "Now that the war is almost past history to the present generation," says The Bankers Monthly, "this tax, which brings no reve nue and can bring none, should be repealed on general principles of justice to the states. This is the first step to legislation to regulate the terms on which both national and state banks can use, for the good of the people, the return of their rights and their freedom in this matter now unjustly withheld from them."

There is a certain metaphysical vagueness about the foregoing remarks, but we know very well what the writer intended to say and we have copied it as one of the signs of the times. A few years ago such utterances would have been regarded as an "attack" on the national banking system: whereas, they are now put forward by a publication which is interested in the welfare of the institutions that have grown up under that system. There is nothing more certain than the fact that the national banking system will shortly have to undergo some radical changes. It is based on the national debt, and it has been the policy of the government under both the republican and the democratic parties to liquidate this debt as rapidly as possible. This liquidation has proceeded with such dispatch that even now the national banks are hampered. and some of them have found it necessary to decrease the volume of their circulation or retire it altogether. If the extract which we have made from The Bankers' Monthly represents the views of any respectable number of national bankers it is a very healthy sign indeed, for it shows that they are preparing to transform their banks into state institutions.

Since 1885 there has been a most surprising increase of state banks, and this fact emphasizes the advice which The Bankers' Monthly gives. The state banks are now more numerous and more prosperous than the national banks, and the time has come for congress to recognize their rights by repealing the 10 per cent tax in their circulation and leave that matter to the states themselves, thus giving our financial system the benefits of decentralization and restoring its old-time relations to communities and commonwealths.

The sudden and extraordinary rise of state commercial banks has already attracted the attention of financial writers, though none of them has attempted to do more than set forth the fact. What this growth has been may be shown in our own state, and in the state of New York, both of these commonwealths holding a commanding position in their respective sections. In 1885 there were seventeen national with a capital of $2,625,000, and individual deposits of $3,827,824. In July, 1891, the number of national banks had grown to thirty-two, with a capital of $4,347,-896, and individual deposits amounting to $5,717,086. In 1885, there were twentyone state banks with a capital of $7,921,950, and $5,271,547 of individual deposits. In July, 1891, there were fifty-one state banks with a capital of $7,082,293, and $12,529,-508 of individual deposits.

In the state of New York there have been only seven national banks organized since 1885, while there have been eighty-five state banks organized. The movement has been the same in all the older states. We shall not pretend to analyze or to explain it, but it certainly goes to show that the restrictions with which the national banks are hampered are not satisfactory to those who desire to engage in the banking business. There are other figures descriptive of the situation in New York which are, to say the least, interesting. While the state banks, since 1885, have increased their deposits over forty-two million dollars, the national banks in the same time have increased their total less than five and a half million dollars. While the state banks have added nearly ten millions to their capital the national banks have added only a little over four and a half millions.

These figures are significant. They show that the people at least are getting ready for the repeal of the 10 per cent tax on circulation.

Killed by a Novel.

It is just as important to read good books as it is to eat good food. Introduce poison into the stomach and the man dies. Let a man take something similar to poison into his mind, and it wrecks or kills him.

The other day in Kansas City, Charles Durgin committed suicide because a gloomy chapter in one of Bulwer's novels had thrown him into a morbid condition of despondency.

If the inside facts about suicide could be definitely ascertained, it is quite probable that many cases would resemble Durgin's. When a man looks on the dark side of life, or reads everything that is horrible and gloomy in literature, he becomes in the course of time practically insane. If Durgin had made it a point to read bright and cheerful books he would have been so well satisfied with his surroundings and prospects that he would have been in no hurry shuffle off this mortal coil.

One of the greatest mistakes that a man can make is to read a bad book or a bad newspaper. The effect is to bring him to nclusion that life is not worth living, and when a person has once reached this point there is always a probability of suicide. But the happy, laughing philosopher—the optimist who always looks on the bright side—never commits the crime of self-murder, Bad literature is filling our asylum the masses to fall back into the illiteracy of their ancestors than to spend their time reading the vicious trash which is now found at every news stand.

Hon. W. H. Felton, Jr., the present popular and efficient solicitor general of the Macon circuit, announces that he will offer for re-election, and his home papers are already referring to his candidacy. Than Mr. Felton, the circuit never had a more popular solicitor general, and if he had done nothing else to establish his reputation, the splendid manner in which he conducted the prosecution of the Woolfolk case would be enough to attest his ability, and, also, the thoroughly satisfactory manner in which he discharges his official duties. He represented Bibb county two years in the legislature, and was one of the most popular members of the house in which he served. Making friends of all who know him, thoroughly competent and able at the bar, he naturally has a very strong hold on his position.

Who Thrilled the Visitors at the Exposition Yesterday.

A DAY FOR YOUNG ORATORS

A Magnificent Programme Presented-Las Balloon Ascensions.

School children and printers! Yesterday was devoted to their enjoyment

It was a holiday for the school children and day off for the printers.

All the privileges of the grounds were given to them, and the children, who had been cooped up in the schoolroom all the week, and the printers, shut up in the composing rooms for seven days in the week, enjoyed the day to the fullest extent. A rare programme, beginning at 10:30 o'clock and lasting until 7 o'clock, was presented.

The Boy Orators. The principal feature of the programme wa the orators' contest, open to eighteen years of age.

Thirteen bright boys spoke for the two Piedmont medals, and the audience enjoyed their maiden efforts immensely.

The contestants met Mr. John Temple Graves at the exposition and marched to the

The first medal offered was for the best declamation by a boy of under fourteen, and the second for the best declamation by a boy ander eighteen.

Master George F. Hurt, of the Boys' High school of Atlanta, and son of Mr. Joel Hurt, was the first speaker. His subject was "Voo hees's Defense of the South." spoken for the

The manly young orators acquitted themselves in a creditable manner, and the audience applauded their splendid efforts liberally. The judges were Colonel Jack Slaton, Hon. E. W. Martin and Mr. Cheney, of Talbot. For the first prize the efforts of George Hurt, Ernest Hallman, Sam Dean and Da Carey were about on an equal, but after some ration the judges decided that if there was any difference, the medal belonged to Dan Carey, and it was awarded to him. The second medal went to Master C. C. Clay, of Americus, without a word. If it had

During the day he received a congratulatory essage from Mayor Felder, of Americus The Piedmont orators' contest was one of th ost interesting events of the exposition.

The boys are enthusiastic in their thanks to Mr. Graves for getting it up.

The Pony Contest. What took the eyes of the children was the pony contest. When the pretty little ponies were trotted in front of the grand stand, cries of admiration were evoked from the children. The prize of $5 was awarded to Master Clinton Brockett.

He entered a pretty little spotted pony with ne, which was led up and down be-and stand after the blue ribbon had been pinned on him. Foot Races.

Foot Races.

Another feature which greatly amused the children was the foot race, run by several small boys. The first race was a one-hundred-yard dash. Messrs. Jim Lynch and Sandy Cohen were the starters. It was won by Master Finiay Knott, with Fred Joy second.

The second was a one-quarter of a mile dash, twelve-year-olds. Everybody laughed until their sides sched at this funnyrace. An angular youth led the field, and he was easily the favorite. Master Pearl Bain brought up the rear, until the homestretch was reached, when he made a surrising finish. He improved he made a surprising finish. He jumpe what seemed to be fifteen feet, and landed th winner amidst uproarous applause. Finley Knott came second. Two Balloon Ascensions. A balloon ascension was made at 1:30 o'clock. It was very successful. In coming down the aeronaut came in contact with a wire, but was not hurt. He made another ascension at 4:30 o'clock, which was witnessed by a large audience assembled to witness King Solomon. The balloon was not well enough filled with gas and did not go very far. It came down in front of the grand stand.

Yesterday's Races. The first race was a three-quarter-mile ash, entries Trovatori, Marksman and Sam

Mitchell.

Trovatori repeated his bad conduct of the day before, and ran away with his rider. He ran for two miles before he could be stopped, but did no damage.

This race was won by Marksman, Sam

Mitchell coming in second.

The next race was a half-mile dash, Sam Mitchell, Billy Lincoln and Crown Prince.

This was a very closely contested race. It was won by Crown Prince, Billy Lincoln taking second place.

ing second place.

The special skirt dance and other features of the programme were presented in the order as they occured. The last grand matinee of King Solomon began at 5 o'clock and was presented to a large audience.

ETCHED AND SKETCHED.

Professor H. C. White, of Athens, was in the city yesterday. He said that the men who en-tered this fall were better prepared than any freshmen in years. This is the best proof that the standard of education is improving throughout the state. There are more ac mies, and more good teachers, than ever before in Georgia, and the number of each is increasing all the time.

Professor White spoke regretfully of the practice so many Georgia parents have of sending their sons to northern colleg have as fine institutions as the north to young men who propose to spend their lives in Georgia there is no institution begets such a fellowship as the university. Our boys have been accused of sticking too closely together, as you know. There does seem to be a peculiarly strong attachment between our university men, and it continues through life. There are those who do say that this has had decisive effects in the state's political affairs." Professor White will deliver an address be fore the normal class of the Girls' High school

From The Pleasant Hill Gazette. A farmer from near Cockrell, Jackson county, was in town the other day and stated to a Gazette man that he had done his trading in Pleasant Hill for about twelve years, but in the last two years he has been trading at Lee's Summit. He was asked why he made a change after so many years. In reply he said: "The reason is just this, the roads in the northern part of Cass county are in a very bad condition and unfit for travel, and have been for several years, which has caused all the trade for several years, which has caused all the trade in my neighborhood to be cut off entirely from Pleasant Hill. We all like to do business with the merchants of your town because they give us better bargains than we can get elsewhere. If the roads leading from the north line of the county to Pleasant Hill. We put in traveling condition the trade from my neighborhood would be no small item to Pleasant Hill. Let the county be instructed to look into the condition of the roads in the north part of the county and see why the road overseers are not doing their duty. Good roads are essential to any county.

The yellow leaves of autumn, which have caught and held all the glorious colors of the rainbow, and which set all the chords of a poet's heart a-tinkling with melody, are causing trouble in Atlanta.

A few days ago these little love billet doux of the autumn began falling from the shade trees into the streets and on the sidewalks.

Differing in Every Respect.

Dr. Price's Delicious Flavoring Extracts differ in every respect from all others. They are more uniform, more economical, because it requires but a small quantity to impart the desired flavor. They are true to nature, as they are made from the fruit. Their flavor is most delicate and pleasing to the taste. They are not the cheapest but they are the best. Try Dr. Price's Vanilla, Lemon, or Orange Extract and we guarantee that they will prove to be all that could be desired by connoisseurs, viz.: perfection.

That Is Preferred by the Citizens to Sepa rate Depost - Work of the Commission-Notes of Many Lines.

The railroad commission had the representative officials of four or five lines up before it yesterday. Albany wants a union depot, and after an agitation of several years has finally got the movement in such shape that the improvement cannot be much longer delayed.

Albany was represented by ex-Representa-ive Wooten and a number of citizens. Their complaint was that the city has only one depot deserving of the name, and it is too small and inadequate for the business.

The question of a union depot was discussed, and it was suggested that perhaps the several roads would prefer to build each a separate depot for itself. The commision was asked by the city of Albany to make a ruling or this point. After going over the ground thoroughly, the commission intimated that a union depot will probably be ordered. But before definite action is taken the commission ers will visit Albany and look at the situation there. The visit will be made Tuesday, November 17th.

Mr. Wooten stated that Albany will make any reasonable concessions to the railroads if any reasonable concessions to the railroads if it can get a union depot.

Captain McBee, of the Central; Captain R. G. Fleming, of the Savannah, Florida and Western, and Mr. George Haines, of the Brunswick and Western, intimated that their roads were disposed to unite with the other lines and build a union depot.

The Commission's New Law.

The interstate commerce commission has laid down a new law, which will worry the railroads no little. In substance, the rule is that carriers must make restitution to those who have paid exorbitant rates. Heretofore the order has simply been to desist from discriminating or making charges that were too heavy. The decision in which this new rule is laid down was in the case of the railroad commission of Florida against the Savannah, Florida and Western Railway Company and other lines forming all rail and part rail and part water routes from Florida to New York and other northern markets. The case involved the reasonableness of rates on oranges. One of the complaints was against the Clyde and Mallory steamship lines and the Florida Cen-Mallory steamship lines and the Florida Central railroad. The advance of 10 cents a box in orange rates, made November 23, 1890, is held by the interstate commission to have been without justification and unreasonable to the extent of 5 cents per box, and defendants are required to reduce it accordingly and to make reparation to the persons entitled thereto. The proceeding is continued for the purpose of determining the amounts due such persons.

The exercise of the power to order reparation instead of simply making a rule for the future has never been attempted before by

The original act to regulate commerce provided that the commission might order reparation as well as fix rates, but when the commission examined the act they doubted their power to enforce such an order without

Subsequently the defects in the act were remedied by congress. The commission prefers that cases involving repartion, many of which do not involve the fixing of rates, should be brought in the courts to avoid needless labor, but where the fixing of rates belongs more properly to the commission it will in the nore properly to the commission it will in the future direct reparation where it seems proper. It will remain with the courts to enforce such decisions by the usual machinery if the railroads refuse to carry out the suggestions of the commission. WHY THE PEOPLE STARED.

Awkward Adventure of a Western Woman in New York.

"I visited New York for the first time in my life last week," said a good-natured west-ern woman the other day, "though my hus-band, who was with me, knew the city pretty band, who was with me, knew the city pretty well from frequent business calls to the east. I was naturally much interested, not to say excited, by the noise and hubbub in the streets, and my husband had amused himself by imagining in what way I would show my country breeding and give myself away for a hayseed, as he called it. I was, therefore, on my guard. True, when he showed me Broadway, the far-famed Broadway that I had read and sung and dreamed about, now all one big ditch, filled with dirt and iron and pipes and mud, and stone-crushers and barrels and tar, I exstone-crushers and barrels and tar, I ex-claimed, 'And is this Broadway?' and was just about to add, 'Where are they taking it to?' when I checked myself in time to escape

"I got along quite well till we entered an inpretentious restaurant, for we could not a forded to spend much money. My husband told me to order what I wanted, as he did not told me to order what I wanted, as he did not fell like eating anything. I asked the waiter for lamb. 'One lamb!' he called prompily to the cook, as he gave me a glass of water. 'Gracious,' I exclaimed, 'a whole lamb for me!' 'Leave what you want of it,' said my husband, dryly. 'Certainly not,' I exclaimed; 'such wicked waste! Waiter, I don't want lamb. Make it raw oysters.' 'Make that lamb one oyster raw, raw!' he called, so angrily that I was afraid to tell him I wanted a dozen But when he brought the order I found that he had six on the plate, and I thought it was a mistake, and that he would only charge me for one in the bill if I said nothing about it.

"As I turned into Broadway alone, I noticed that several people whom I passed stared at me curiously. I resented this from men, thinking it impertinence; but when some women tittered, I looked down at my hands, my skiris, my shoes, etc., but could see nothing out of pace, and I knew that even if my clothes were somewhat countryfied in cut, they ing out of place, and I knew that even if my clothes were somewhat countryfied in cut, they were not far enough behind the fashion to warrant such rudeness, even in New York. Still the people stared at me and some turned to look after me. One woman made a motion as if to stop me and speak to me, but now, thoroughly hot and angry, I tossed my head indignantly and almost ran.

Suried Cities of New Mexico

Fre. The Chicago Tribune. "New Mexico and Arizona offer as great a field for archeologists as do the lands where the empires of ancient days flourished," said W. P. Metcalf, of Albuquerque, N. M., at the Leland yesterday. "An expedition left Albuquerque only a day. "An expedition left Albuquerque only a few days ago to seek for treasure which traditions say is to be found at Gran Quivera, 100 miles from that city. Before the pilgrims landed at Plymouth Rock there were flourishing settlements of white men along the Rio Grande. Coronado, in his history of the explorations made as early as 1540, wrote of the seven cities of Cibola, describing them as of fabulous wealth and magnificent beauty. The ruins of Gran Quivera are believed to be the ruins of one of those cities. Coronado told of abundant gold and treasure in all of these cities, and many expeditions have explored about Quivera. The ruins indicate that a large city stood there. The limestone walls mark-out the sites of palaces, monasteries and churches. A currous thing is that no water can be found for fifty miles around the site of the old city, although treasure searchers have honey-combed the land trying to secure a supply of water. No treasure has ever been found there, but the belief that it is located there antedates any traditions of the Mexicans or Indians. Just what prospects induced the last expedition to start out I do not know." few days ago to seek for treasure which tradi

A GREAT CATCH

Was That of the Atlanta Detectives When They Landed the Three Crooks.

EIGHT THOUSAND DOLLARS REWARD.

Charley Diamond and Harry Armstrong Carried to St. Louis-Bacon in Jail Here.

The three crooks so cleverly captured about a week ago by Atlanta detectives, as was stated at the time of the arrest, are wanted, and badly wanted.

They are three of a gang of the most noted mail robbers in the country. Their operations have covered the entire north and west and some of the southern cities.

When arrested here a week ago they gave their names as Tom Bacon, Harry Armstrong and Charley Diamond. They formed a welland Charley Diamond. They formed a well-dressed, good-looking trio and protested against being locked up. They made a big bluff, but it didn't go. The detectives felt sure of the importance of their prisoners and quietly stored them away in the sta ion house in separate cells. They had something like five hundred dollars among them and smoked good cigars and ordered their meals from the best restaurant in the city. They were as mum as oysters, and when asked by Chief Connolly if they wanted a lawyer they replied that they had no use for one. They took life easy, and occupied their hours in having a good time by "guying" the picturesque and comical crowds that daily found lodging in the same jail. The detectives worked hard to secure a confession or some kind of information, but they were as shrewd a trio as ever struck Atlanta, and kept their own counsel. Several unsuccessful efforts to photograph them were made, and copies of these pictures were sent over the country. The pictures fell into the hands of the bureau of postoffice inspectors, and were instantly recognized as three of a gang of the most noted mail box robbers in the country. The Atlanta authorities were at once notified to hold the men.

The crooks were given to understand that they had been completely caught in a trap from which there was no hope of extraction but still they would say nothing. They were interviewed upstairs, down stairs, in public in private, but significant silence marked their movements.

The Inspectors Arrive.

The chief inspector of the postoffice depart-ment of the United States, and a detective in the mail department, arrived in the city and quietly slipped into the cells of the robbers. quiety supped into the cens of the roboers, confronting them with the gravity of their situation. They made no attempt to deny the charges made against them by the postoffice officials, neither would they admit anything. They have strictly adhered to the policy that silence is golden since their incarceration. A search of their rooms in the house in which they had been stopping in this city was made search of their rooms in the house in which they had been stopping in the city was made and a full supply of burglar's tools of all descriptions and a lot of United States mall box keys were found. This de not seem to alarm them, as in fact nothing has done, their only anxiety being for good meals, good cigars and recreasements.

A Move Is Made.

Yesterday another chapter in the story was recorded. Two of the crooks were carried to St. Louis, and the other one committed to jail here in default of a five-thousand-dollar bond. Yesterday morning all order was secured from Judge Newman permitting the revious of Harry Armstrong and Charley Diamond from the Fulton county jail to St. Louis. They left at 1 o'clock on the Western and Atlantic train, in charge of deputy United States Marshal McDonald and two postoffice inspectors.

Tom Bacon was found in possession of a key to the Jecal mail boxes, and in view of certain circumstances that pointed to some of cooked work in this city, he was given a preliminary trial before Judge Will Haight and committed to jail in default of a five-thousand-dollar bond. It is believed that, notwithstanding their statements to the contrary, they got in some elick work on the great heafter. A Move Is Made.

statements to the contrary, they got in some slick work on the mail boxes here the first three days of their arrival in this city. They are wanted in Philadelphia, Denver, Kansas City, New York city, Chicago, New Orleans and other places for extensive rob-beries of street mail boxes. There are six of the gang, and it is said the amount of their stealings in the past eighteen months will run into hundreds of thousands of dollars. They were tried in the courts of St. Louis and committed to jail for robbing mail boxes, but made their escape. Rewards aggregating over eight thousand dollars have been offered for their capture, and will be paid the detectives here. the detectives here.

SCOTCH HOMESPUNS

We said that Clothing Advertising was stupid---as literature. It may be very interesting in fact---like this, for instance:

It was a happy and prescient decision, made months since, that Homespuns were to rule in the Men's Clothing business this season It has brought fame and profit to our store.

Two new styles, $18 and $20 a Suit, go in stock today. The Homespuns range from $13.50 to $30 a Suit. That means style for the economical man, for the more lavish man, for every man wishing to wear Homespuns.

Here's a big fact. For Boys 4 to 15 years we show twenty full lines of Suits at from $3.50 to $15. Isn't that a powerful Clothing text?

As in one, so in all—the royal stock is an imperial store. ·

HE IS INSANE.

CALISED BY PHYSICAL WEAKNESS.

Thinks He Has Been Poisoned-Placed in the Hospital, butiEscaped-From a Prominent Family.

A strange case of insanity developed in this aity yesterday.

The victim is Micheal Heller, a young man about twenty-two or twenty-three years old and a member of a prominent New York

Heller came to Atlanta in response to a telegram from Harry Frank, the ticket broker, purpose of examining signatures.

He worked for Mr. Frank about ten years ago, and learned the cut-rate ticket business while in Frank's employ. Heller branched out and for some time Mr. Frank heard nothing of him. Just before the exposition, Mr. Frank found he would need more help, and wanted a thoroughly experienced man, who could act as expert examiner. He wrote to ome relations in Detroit, who are in the ticket business there, inquiring about a man. The Detroit people had had Heller with them for some time, but he had left for Cincinnati. They wrote Mr. Frank, knowing that Heller was once with him, and that his services were entirely satisfactory, that if he wanted Heller he could be found in Cincinnati. As Heller was experienced in the business and a scrupulously honest man, in Mr. Frank's opinion, he wired him to come

When Heller arrived it was noticeable that he was physically very weak, although a large, strong young man ordinarily. He acted strangely, and at times had the appearance of a man whose mind was temporarily deranged. Mr. Frank, after two days' work, told Heller that he could not keep him. "If I can do anything for you," said Mr. Frank, "I will do it, but you can't fill the place in the office."

Mr. Frank offered him a ticket back home,

Mr. Frank offered him a ticket back home, but he would not accept it.

Yesterday Heller walked up to Patrolman Vannell and requested that he be carried to the police station and protected, saying that he had been poisoned by Mr. Frank. He said that the night before he had drank a cup of chocolate with some of his supposed friends, and that it was undoubtedly poisoned, as he had hear side all day and his supposed from those en sick all day, and his symptoms were those OPELIKA, Ala., November 6.—[Special.]—Manager J. H. Daw and Assistant Manager Wineman, of the American Pipe Company of Wineman, of the American Pipe Company of Philadelphia, arrived in the city a few days ago, and the construction of the waterworks will begin at once and be completed at an early date. A contract was made with Judge J. J. Abercrombie for thirty acres of land upon which there is a copious supply of excellent water. This location is about two miles north of the city.

Forest Fires Around Florence. FLORENCE, Ala., November 6.-[Special.]-Forest fires are raging all around Florence, and on the west side have reached a point within two miles of the city. On the north the fires extend from Columbia, Tenn., to the Alabama line, and in the south the mountains, in Colbert and Franklin counties, are ablaze. Much valuable timber has been destroyed, and, unless rain comes to put out the fires, the damage will amount to thousands of dollars.

Found a Skeleton in the House from The New York World. Dr. John W. Riley, a prominent citizen of Sar-lina, Decaure county, Indiana, bought three years ago, at sheriff's sale, a large farmhouse near that village, known as the old Clendening place. Bone day last week, while re-roofing the house, carpenters found hanging to the rafters of a one-story kitchen addition the skeleton of a human being wrapped in a sheet. From all appearances the skeleton had been there for several years.

Dr. Riley began an investigation, and brought to light these facts: About fifteen years ago John Clendenning, who owned the farm, died, leaving $40,000 to his son, John, and a daughter, Emma, then married to a man named Shank. In the distribution of his estate the homestead fell to John, who squandered his property.

About the time of these reverses a fine bay horse was found on John's premises, saddled and bridled. Young Clendenting advertised it as a stray horse. From that time young Clendening became melancholy and shortly afterwards he dis-appeared and has never been heard of since that

Shortly before the disappearance of Clenden-ning a prominent stock buyer named McKinney, who lived in the vicinity, disappeared, and from all the circumstances then known it was thought be had been murdered for his money. It is also said that when he left home he rode a horse similar to the one found on Clendenning's premises. It is now surmised by many that Cleudenning murdered McKinney, and that the skeleton is the stockbuyer's. The skull of the skeleton appears to be punctured as if by a ball. Hundreds of people are visiting that the skeleton appears to be punctured as if by a ball. ple are viziting the premises and an investigation

THE STATE BOARD OF PHARMACY

Holds Its Annual Session at the Capit Testerday.

The state board of pharmacy held its annual ession in the senate chamber yesterday. It was the occasion for the candidates of pharmacy to prove their worth and become pharmacy to prove their models it consed for practice.

A full board was present. Dr. Harry Snarp, of Atlanta; Dr. H. R. Slack, of La Grange; J. W. Goodwyn, of Macon; Dr. S. C. Durban, of Augusta, and Dr. George Payne, of Macon. Mr. J. W. Goodwyn is the present president of the association and Dr. Slack the secretary. A good number of candidates reported at the opening of the session, and others came in on trains during the day. After registering they were furnished with quite a rigid examination. This test was printed, and the same paper was furnished to all the candidates.

The young men plodded assiduously with their tasks all day long. It was evident to the observer that it now takes some considerable proficiency and much good sense to obtain a license to practice pharmacy in

Those examined were Messrs. H. T. Gaines, Butler, Ga.; J. L. Brooks, E. L. Wiggins, William Johnson and J. L. Albernathy, of Atlanta; R. B. Nesbit, Eatonton, Ga.; D. S. Carrington, J. J. Wooten and S. E. Baine, of

The term of Dr. Jourger, of Brunswick, as member of the board having expired, Dr. Payne, the state chemist, was sworn in for a five years' term.

Some very interesting analysis of drugs were conducted by the board, or rather reports of them were received, but nothing was made public yesterday.

The young men worked on their papers until night. Then the board and the candidates together adjourned to the Kimball house to partake of a sumptuous banquet in onor of the occasion.

Dr. Slack spoke yesterday of the new law enacted by the legislature. This is an amendment to the present law and provides that all graduates of schools of pharmacy or all graduates of schools of pharmacy or medicine in the state shall pass an examination before this board before becoming entitled to practice. This applies to all those who have had less than five years' actual experience in pharmacy or medicine.

Dr. Slack says that a good deal of misunderstanding exists all over the state as to the exact meaning of this law. He has received several hundred letters of inquiry about trand thinks there should be no cause for ignorance several hundred letters of inquiry about it and thinks there should be no cause for ignorance of it. The new law simply means that ignoramuses and dunces shall no longer be entitled to mix medicines and prescribe them under heavy penalty of the law.

Those who have had five years' experience are presumed to have acquired enough knowledge at least to know what is poisonous. Hence, those of five years' practice are exempted; but all with less experience than that must stand the test or be forbidden to practice.

A Great Comedy Company. The appearance of "Mr. Wilkinson's Windows," as presented by Charles Frohman's company of comedians, makes an epoch in the stage of Atlanta such as is rarely recorded.

It is under the same management as the great uccess recently presented, "Alabama." The public is assured by the press of our neighboring cities that as a comedy production it sequal to "Alabama" as a pathetic story. "Mr. Wilkinson's Widows" is a complication and an intricate story told in the peculiar and fascinating style of Mr. William Gillette. His "Private Secretary," "Held by the Enemy," and "All the Comforts of "Home," sink into insignificance besides this side-splitting, all interesting treatise of "Mr. Wilkinson's Widows."

For seven months standing room only was displayed at the doors of the Twenty-third street theater, New York, and the intricate situations and complex perplexities of the widows of the deceased Wilkinson, cause the house to roar with laughter while it is being presented.

A conspicuous feature of the success of this play in its New York run was the remarkable attractiveness it had for the ladies. They monopolized most of the seats at the maxinees, but at night they far outnumbered the men.

Apart from the fun of the play itself there is something irresistibly attractive about "Mr. Wilkinson's Widows," which will appear next Wednesday at DeGive's.

"The Clemenceau Case."

"The Clemenceau Case." In the presence of the adverse criticisms that some critics have given of this play, we will state that previous to its appearance in England it was submitted to the authorities for approval. The lord chamberlain, having read the Fleron version of "The Clemenceau Case," has given his opinion that the play is both moral and instructive, and has granted his permission for its production in London, where it will be seen in July next, probably at the Standard theater, as Manager W. A. Brady is now negotiating with the English managers for the appearance of the entire Sybil Johnstone company with his superb American production. The fact that the English censor has accepted this play would seem to be a rebuke to such of the press as have sweepingly condemned the performance, as it is well known that our British consins have always been more particular about the character of the dramatic works presented there than have the public and authorities of America. The endorsement by the London authorities of the American version of this now celebrated play is the highest compliment "The Clemenceau Case" has yet received. In the presence of the adverse criticisms that

Stumbled Over a Stump. COLUMBUS, Ga., November 6.—[Special.]—
Henry K. Ware, a popular young man, aged twenty-one years, son of J. J. Ware, of Seale, met with a very serious accident this morning. He was out hunting, and stumbled over a stump, which discharged his gun. His hat was blown entirely off his head. A number of shot entered his face and other parts of his body, and his hand was badly injured. His escape from instant death was marvelous. Tonight he was reported to be doing as well as could be expected, at his father's residence in Seale.

To Deepen the Channel.

Brunswick, Ga., November 6. - [Special.]—
The board of trade at today's meeting passed The board of trade at today's meeting passed a strong resolution favoring the acceptance by the council of Colonel Goodyear's proposition to deepen the channel of the outer bar. The movement has met with the unanimous support of the people of Brunswick. Many wealthy citizens and land owners have devoted one-tentil of their suburban property to the work, and there is not a shadow of a doubt as to the success of the work.

Mr. Clifford Saul Disappears After Numer ous Unpleasant Transactions—His Friends Regret It.

The young man's name is Clifford San He is the seventeen-year-old son of Mr. W. S. Saul, the well-known marble man.

Young Saul has nearly all of his life resided in Atlanta. He has always borne most excellent reputation, and was regarded above reproach. He was intelligent, of an exceedingly splendid family and a very handsome boy.

But none of these advantages avail him

On last Saturday the young man informed a few of his friends confidentially that he was "going to leave for good."

He hasn't been seen since and his absence has made several merchants regret transac-tions. Before Saul left he had purchased a complete rig-out, concluding with dainty patent leathers and the latest and most elegant head gear. For these he paid not a cent in cash, but at the various stores at which he bought the goods, referred to his father and had the amount charged to him.

Mr. Saul now refuses to pay his wayward son's debts. He declares himself indifferent to the boy's return, and says that if he desires to remain away it is

But he adds that the purchases were made without his consent or knowledge, and decilines to make them good.

In view of this the victimized dealers will undoubtedly make efforts to bring young Saul hack undoubtedly make efforts to bring young Saulback.

The boy's many friends here are giving credence to his escapade with reluctance. He has always stood well with them, and been nusually popular, and they still hope that he will turn up and satisfactorily explain the charges against and the rumors about him.

His family regress the affair exceedingly, and their confidence in the young boy's honesty is not altogether shaken.

His schoolmates don't know what to think of it.

But he has gone and besides his numerou purchases has taken a needful amount of cash with him, whether honestly acquired or not is Saul is supposed to have gone to Savannsh, and the local authorities think they have lo-

An English surgeon has just performed an extraordinary operation by which he has turned an idiot into an intelligent child. turned an idiot into an intelligent child.

The subject of this operation was a child about a year old whose head, when the body began to grow, remained of the size of a newborn child's. This was owing to the fact that the cranium was hermetically scaled and of a hardness which made the growth of the brain impossible. The baby grew without a ray of intelligence illuminating its face, and the parents, tired of weeping, almost wished the death of the idiot, when the surgeon resolved to risk the great operation.

In the presence of a certain number of colleagues whom he wished to be witnesses, he split with his scalpel the cranial box of the patlent, and with his fingers removed the cervical matter adhering to the skull. The

The wound healed rapidly. As it did so the patient gained intelligence and was like any other child at the end of a month.

THE NEW YORK MARKET.

The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, November 6.—The stock market today was quiet and strong during the forenoon, but the bears were active sellers of the whole market in the afternoon, and weakness took the place of the former and account of the strength of the strengt strength, and material losses were sustained among a few shares which received the most severe pounding. Various rumors of a disquieting nature were set afloat, and some of them were of the wildest kind, one being the death of Mr. Gould. Rumors of failures were very numerous, and at first they pointed to Boston, but inquiries met with a positive denial from that center, and afterward other cities were named. London was both a buyer and seller, while no reasen appeared for selling, and foreign houses are inclined to believe that the selling orders were sent from this side of the ocean for effect upon prices here. The onslaught in the afternoon was very vigorous, and again Coal stocks, Grangers and Vanderbilts felt the force of the pressure. The selling was undoubtedly for short account, and, while a few were very numerous, and at first they pointed to Boswas undoubtedly for short account, and, while a few stop orders were uncovered, there was a marked lack of stock for sale, and the strength of the general situaof stock for sale, and the strength of the general situa-tion was shown in the reluctance of the rest of the list to follow the weak stocks. There was no cessation of the pressure until the close of business, the market closing fairly active and weak at about the lowest points of the day. The losses of note include Reading and Lackawanna, 1%; Erie and Cieveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis, 1%; Wheeling and Lake Erie preferred, 1¼, and Northwestern and Louisville and Nashville, 1 per cent each. Sales of listed stocks, 321, 606 shares.

Cahn & Co.'s Stock Letter.

By Private Wire to Youngblood & Haas, NEW YORK, November 6.—The London arbitrage NEW YORK, November 6.—The London arbitrage people have been big buyers in the last two days, but, as this market had not advanced, they sold this morning about twelve thousand shares of stock. The shorts were the principal buyers this morning, and the market was remarkably steady in the first two hours, considering the way the market closed yesterday. At about 1 o'clock the bears, seeing they were being supplied with stocks, turned sellers, and in the last bour plied with stocks, turned sellers, and in the last hour began a vigorous and very successful attack on prices. The Coal stocks were singled out as a special point of attack, Delaware, Lackawanna and Western, Reading attack, Delaware, Lackawanna and Western, Reading and Erie being sold with great freedom. Mr. Cammack and his following are responsible for the majority of these sales. In the last hour and a half the short selling in Reading alone must have amounted to ever ten thousand shares. It was said that the coal combination was in a very bad way, and that the prices were being cut. The trouble, no doubt, lies in the fact that the Reading road is dissatisfied with the precentage it is getting, and will or has already made. percentage it is getting, and will or has already made a demand for more. In the last few years they could not demand more on account of their weak financial condition; but since then they have had time to recuperate, and feel strong enough now to enforce their supposed rights. St. Paul was very strong throughout, and the stock was well supported. Still it would not surprise us to see it sell off, as it has had the least decline of any stock on the list. The pool, nevertheless, that is working the stock is very strong. The general market closes weak and demoralized. The short interest today has increased although there was a good deal of long stock sold. The street was pretty well scared, and we think the time is near when it will be advisable for the people to take hold again. The market on an average has declined shout seven points, and we think stocks a purchase on every decline. The bank statement tomorrow will show a big decrease, as a good deal of money has been shipped to Boston this week. There is nothing new about the bank troubles in Boston. condition; but since then they have had time to recu

[Special.] - A deci-NEW YORK, November 6.—[Special.]—A decline at the opening of from 3@4-6id in Liverpool this morning and a weak closing there gave the bulls here but lit-tle encouragement. Notwithstanding the market here has been without conspicuous weakness, a decline of about 5 points at the opening was followed by a further drop of some 4 points, but by 2 o'clock prices were steady at about the opening figures, the extreme decline having been partially recovered. There is here signowing indisposition to follow the market further down by short selling until after the publication of the government report on the 10th instant. This report usually indicates the expected yield per acre of lint cotton. A comparison of these figures with those of the forthcoming report will be interesting and instructive. The interior movement promises to be 135,000 bales, against 141,000 bales last year. Bad weather is reported in some of the north Atlantic states today, and it may be regarded as a certainty that any reduction of the movement from whatever cause would result in higher prices. After 2 o'clock the market again became easier, closing finally barely steady at the lowest of the day. The last decline was the result of a heavier movement than had been indicated earlier. The total is 145,000 bales, against 141,000 bales last year. These figures, it is expected, will exert a depressing effect upon Liverpool tomorrow, but it is evident the disclosures of Mr. Elikon's circular with regard to the possibility of increased consumption at these prices have made the bears decidedly less agressive. The weekly Liverpool statement shows that the total stock available for that market has increase 88,000 bales during the week, and is now 122,000 bales larger than last year. The stock of American is 290,000 bales larger.

By private wire to Youngblood & Haas.

NEW YORK, November 6—The market today has again been weak and lower under the influence of easier Liverpool and continued heavy receipts, the movement of the crop again proving fully equal to last week and somewhat more than for the corresponding week lest year. For comparison, we give the theorem. week last year. For comparison we give the move-ment for this week as follows: Port receipts 341,000 ment for this week as follows: Portreceipts 341,000 bales: last week same; last year 362,000. Interfor receipts 146,000 bales; last week 140,000; last year 142,600, while the plantation movement now points to about 376,000 bales. The stock of cotton at all ports is now about 500,000 bales in excess of last year. Another factor to assist the weakness has been the liberal selling of the near months by parties who ciaim to have bought the cotton in the south and will bring the same here for delivery on contracts. This naturally reflects some weakness on the entire list, but has particularly depressed the nearer positions. The outlook is certainly not encouraging, still present prices have reached a point which should discount the liberal movement, while bringing the risk on the long side to a very limited one.

Features of the Speculative Movement to Grain and Provisions. Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, November 6-On the wheat market today a stronger feeling was developed and the market was active and advancing throughout. There was a good trade with shorts covering freely and buying on long accounts. The advance was attributed to the strong tenor of cable advices and continued dry weather in the winter wheat country and further rumors pertaining to the exportation of wheat from Russia. The opaning was about \( \chi_0 \) higher than yesterday's closing, and with some fluctuations advanced to more, then slum in corn on heavy selling and the market broke badly.

Onts were strong and higher with shorts trying hard to cover.

Hog products were quiet and weak. The leading futures ranged as follows in Chleage Highest. 9634 98 104% 98 5114 4636 4434 33% 11 82 % 11 80 6 30 6 30

CHICAGO, November 6.—All the cables bring reports of higher markets abroad, and it is generally believed that Russia will establish some sort of a restriction on the exportation of wheat. The drought in belleved that Russia will establish some sort of a restriction on the exportation of wheat. The drought in the winter wheat region is becoming very serious, more so every day. It is evident that parties living in that locality consider is on as the speculative element are quite liberal buyers of wheat. Pillsbury, of Minneapolis, deports very heavy sales of flour at the highest prices on this crop, he says, even higher than when wheat was $1.15. There has been considerable buil news in the way of nigher cables and drought, thinking there must and would be a turn in their favor; but foday was more than they could stand, and they were decidedly the most active element on the buil side of wheat the greater part of the session, and especially the latter part.

The speculation in core was large, and the deferred futures establ shed a sharp advance. The demand for high grades of cash oors, however, was fully supplied the lore part of the session. The buyers seemed to the flore part of the session if the latter of the interest entirely and turned their attention to the lower grades, causing a decline of about 2e from the highest point, and closing 1% lower than yesterday. This would indicate that the new corn is taking the place of the high grades for domestic purposes. It looks now as if the improvement in the grade and the increased movement might cause a decline in the higher grades to about 5bc. The difference in the quality between No. 3 new and some of the sample tots of higher grades to about 5bc. The difference in the quality between No. 3 new and some of the sample tots of higher grades to about 5bc. The difference in prices.

The market for oats was strong and active from opening to close. In a speculative way there was very little doing.

The receipts and estimated receipts of hogs were larger than expected, causing rather a weak feeling; but the demand for cash product and the strength in grain caused a slight advance and a rather firm provision market.

That home for fallen women will never be blished on Loyd street. That is the meaning of an ordinance passed

And for the passage of which a called meeting of ladies at a Pryor street residence last sight passed up a vote of thanks to the mem-bers of the city government.

The article in THE CONSTITUTION of yesterday furnished the first positive information that the home for fallen women was about to be located in one of the choicest residence portions of the city.

"I would close up my house and quit it," said Mr. A. G. Rhodes. "I would not even attempt to rent it, for I would not ask others to live in a place where I would scorn to live

This is but a sample of what was heard on

A Salty Editorial. The Evening Herald investigated the com-plaints of the people of south Atlanta. Editor Biackburn, quick to take in the situation, wrote as his leader this, under the head of "An Injustice Threatened." The people of a respectable portion of Atlanta are protesting against the locating of the reformatory for fallen women in their neighborhood.

They have the profound sympathy of The Herad.

The reformatory, at best, is a doubtful experiment, and it is a neighbor that no respectable family desires. To force it on a section of the city where men have built homes, and where they e their wives and daughters would be an outrage.

The Herald does not propose to mince words about this matter. People have a right to spend their money trying to reform tallen women, but they have no right to do injustice to people who

It is well to take a sensible view of the world as we go along. It is foolish to indulge in sickly sentiment regarding women who are outcasts, and it would be a shame to carry such women into a neighborhood where the pure and virtuous make their homes. make their homes.

If the persons who have taken up this fad wish to go ahead, let them do so, but let them not injure others. Respectable people and virtuous homes still have rights, and if these rights are outraged, as they would be in this case, The Herald would not answer for the consequences.

If the reformatory is torn down and cast into the stream than the miscrufed projectors will.

the streets, then the misguided projectors will get an idea of how deeply a man feels when protecting his home. An Offer to Sell. One of the most interested readers of the interviews printed in The Constitution of yesterday was Rev. Mr. Cadwallader himself. "I cannot see," said he, "that the question of dollars and cents should weigh against the salvation of an immortal soul." Nevertheless, Mr. Cadwallader came to the usion that it would be unpleasant to establish the home in the midst of an unfriendly people, where their enmity would bring to the institution untold and even unname able annoyances. He therefore suggested that if the citizens of south Atlanta would buy the house it would relieve him.

That proposition was mentioned to several parties most deeply interested. One of them

"If we submit ourselves to be put to the expense of spending $5,000 to get rid of this in-stitution, we may be bled later on by other projects. The whole fact of the matter is, the property in our section is only valuable as lect residence property. Take that character away from it and no family of pride would live there. We were here first; our sweat and toil have built it up; our money has been exour wives and daughters, and these wives and aughters are nearer, dearer and more preclous to us than all the fallen women in the fallen women go there own way and leave us alone. We pay our taxes and the city government should protect us."

The Light Appears. When the city council met the following ordinance was introduced by Councilman Sawtell, and unanimously passed: Be it ordained by the mayor and general council

Be it ordained by the mayor and general council of the city of Atlanta, and it is hereby ordained by authority of the same.

Section 1. From and after the passage of this ordinance it shall be unlawful for any person or persons in said city to erect or maintain any hospital, infirmary, house or place of refuge, or relormatory, or asylum, or other place where persons are received for reformation or treatment, without first having obtained the consent of the without first having obtained the consent of the mayor and general council of said city for the erection or maintenance of the same. And all applications to the mayor or the general council for ission to erect, maintain or carry on any place for any such purpose must plainly and dis-tinctly show the particular locality where the same is desired, for what purpose the place is de-sired to be erected or maintained, and what class of persons are to be admitted to the same Sec. 2. Be it further ordained by the authority aforesaid that any person or persons who shall violate the provisions of the foregoing section of this ordinance shall, on conviction thereof, be punished by a fine of not more than $100 and im-prisonment not exceeding thirty days, either or prisonment not exceeding thirty days, either or both in the discretion of the court, for each and every such offense committed Sec. 3. Be it further ordained that all laws and ordinances in conflict with the foregoing ordinance are hereby repealed.

The ordinance now goes to Mayor Hemphill for his signature. On being asked about it, Mayor Hemphill said: "I will certainly protect the property rights and the homepride of our good people who have, by industry and good lives, built up homes for their wives and children. I would not want the proposed "home" next to my own home, and I appreciate the solicitude of the people of south Atlanta. I have not read the ordinance yet, but it strikes me as being in the right direction to reserve to the city government the power to protect its citizens who invest their savings in residence property."

There was a meeting of about one hundred property owners at the residence of Mr. A. G. Rhodes last night. They organized for the purpose of self-protection. and were unanimous in their desire that Mayor Hemphill should at once approve the ordinance adopted by the Report of Dun & Co., of Business for the Week. New York, November 6.—Business failures occurring throughout the country during the last seven days, as reported to R. G. Dun & Co., number for the United States 223, and Canada 43, or 266, compared with 255 last week and 249 the week 200, compared with 250 ast week and 245 the week previous. For the corresponding week last year the figures were 215. The failure of a widely known bank at Boston was a striking event of the week, but has caused astonishment rather than disturbance.

Effect of the Maverick Failure.

The withdrawals of money from this point to fortify Boston have caused higher rates, 6 per fortify Boston have caused higher rates, 6 per cent_against 3 per cent weeks ago,but supplies continue to come steadily from Europe. The Bank of England does not change its ra es, though losing gold largely, and the official treasury report shows the addition of $33,000,000 to the actual circulation of all kinds in October. Crops are moving freely, so that it seems exactely possible that any important monetary disturbance should arise at present. It is also a reassuring fact to cattern capitalists and investors that the western elections have resulted in the complete defeat of those who advocated wild financial schemes. So that their power in the next session of congress is likely to be much diminished.

Reports from the Cities.

Reports from the Cities. Reports from all parts of the country shows that business, though interrupted somewhat by the elections, has been healthy and large in vol-ume. At Boston the failure of the Maverick bank caused some uneasiness, but business continues steady and healthy. No lack of confidence is seen, and money is easy. The only cities re-porting monetary pressure are Omaha and Savannah.

The iron industry, in spite of the lowest prices ever known for some products, shows no despondency, and the demand for manufactured iron and steel does not diminish. Trade in dry goods looks a little better. Spring woolens are in rather more demand, the dress goods season is fairly satisfactory, and agents have begun to show overcoating with fair results. The recent decision as to worsteds open the way to largely increased imports.

Trade in cottons is not just now sound to least.

imports.

Trade in cottons is not just now equal to last year's, but for the whole season thus far it has been considerably larger.

Speculation has lifted wheat 134, though west-rn receipts continue enormous. Exports for the week thus far are about equal to those of recent weeks. Corn has declined half a cent, with some-weeks. Corn has declined half a cent, with somewhat increased receipts at the west, and cotton an eighth with very heavy receipts at southern ports. Oil, pork, products and logs are somewhat lower, but coffee is half a cent higher.

The general average of prices are a shade lower for the week, and markets are less embarrassed than usual by eliques maintaining artificial prices. In the main labor is well employed, with few controversies about wages.

Stocks have been weak on account of the failure at Boston and some selling for foreigners, but show a little better tone at the close. The treasury continues to add new notes to the circulation in exchange for silver purchased, but the price of silver bullion has dropped to 48% per ounce. Throughout the country collections seem to be fair for the season, and on the whole gradually improving.

TO SMOKERS.

Accumulations of muchs are especially wel marked in the morning, after smoking during the evening hours, when the gastric walls are covered with a thick, tenacious layer. Food entering the stomach at this time will become covered with this tenacious coating, which for a time prevents the action of the gastric ferments, and so hinders proper digestion. One or two of the Soden Mineral Pastilles taken in the morning before breakfast will clear the throat and stomach of all these accumulations of mucus. These Pastilles are also an excellent remedy for sore throat, colds and all catarrhal affections.

THE WANDERER CASE.

A Cause Celebre in the History of Geor gia Again Discussed.

GEN, JACKSON'S ADDRESS NEXT FRIDAY

The Story of a Case That Caused Two Duels-Commodore Moore and Charley Lamar-Last Slave Ship.

The address General Henry R. Jackson will deliver at the capitol on Friday night is likely to be discussed from one end of the continent

The great prosecution known as the Wanderer case, occuring in Savannah, a hotbed of secession in 1860, when the states were on the eve of breaking away from the federal government, caused excitement hardly paralleled in the state's history.

General Jackson, an advocate of slavery, General Jackson, an advocate of slavery, was prosecuting the purser of a slave ship for bringing negroes from Africa to the Georgia coast. Though backed by the whole power of Mr. Buchanan's administration, and associated with a district attorney so able and popular as Major Joseph Ganahl, General Jackson was, for the time, the object of the bitterest resentment of the people of Savannah. So extreme and bitter was the feeling that Major Ganahl was attacked on the street and exchanged shots with his assailant, while Commodore Moore, who had been an unwilling witness, was openly denounced at the court house in such offensive denounced at the court house in such offensive denounced at the court house in such offensive terms that a duel followed the next morning.

The trial developed the fact that this slave ship was owned partly by the United States marshal of the southern district of New York, and the rest of the owners, with one exception, were from Maine and the other New England states. Their cargo of Africans was landed at Jekyl island in 1800, only a year before the war, and Egbert F. Farnham, who was purser of the ship and brought a prisoner to Savannah on the capital charge of piracy, afterwards went to New York and enlisted for the war started by abolitionists. He rose to the rank of major general, and was a corps commander.

The parties brought into this trial were The parties brought into this trial were highly connected. Commodore Moore, who had to fight a duel on account of his testimony against Farnham, had been the commander of the Texas navy when that state was struggling for independence against Mexico. Strange to say, he owed his appointment to Mirabeau Lamar, president of the Texas republic, who was a cousin of Charley Lamar, the man he fought a duel with.

was a cousin of Charley Lamar, the man he fought a duel with.

The story is one full of the most dramatic scenes. One of them occurred during the trial while Farnham was a prisoner. Charley Lamar and other like impetuous spirits took Farnham from the jail one night and publicly banqueted him. At the banquet a number of red-hot speeches were made and Farnham was the toast and the lion of the occasion. In his speech at the banquet he stated that his first act on getting loose from the clutches of the law would be to kill General Jackson. It was a great cause, calculated to provoke a It was a great cause, calculated to provoke a great lawyer to stirring eloquence. In the concluding argument General Jackson made a memorable speech, in which he used a famous

This address is the first of a series on Georgia history, to be delivered under the auspices of the Young Men's Library.

The use of the heautiful hell is the new coarse. The use of the beautiful hall in the new car itol was granted for this purpose by resolution of the house of representatives. Governor Northen will preside. The address will be public and all who take an interest in the history of Georgia are invited to attend. Special invitations will be sent to the schools and a large attendance is expected.

General Jackson's reputation as an orator and a poet is such that it would be superfluous to speak here of his gifts and grace in speech.

His distinction as a lawyer led to his appointment as recognition in the Wanderge ages. The ment as prosecutor in the Wanderer cas ment as prosecutor in the Wanderer case. The appointment was made by Judge Jeremiah Black, of Pennsylvania, then attorney general of the United States, one of the most profound lawyers this country has ever produced.

A special invitation will be extended to the Atlanta bar association to attend the delivery of General Jackson's address.

Daniel Ledbetter, an Old Peddler, Falls
Through an Elevator.

Daniel Ledbetter, well known as a peddler, fell through an elevator on South Broad street yesterday morning and was killed.

With his little portable shop and stock hestarted on his rounds as usual yesterday morning. He stopped his wagon in front of the store of J. M. B. Carlton on South Broad street and went in, passing on to the rear at once to attend to some business.

In a few moments after he passed back, Mr. Carlton heard a heavy fall and smothered cry. He rushed to the scene and found Ledbetter suspended across the elevator beam. He was moning in a most agonizing manner. He

The physician found Ledbetter in a dying condition from internal injuries. Nothing could be done to save him, and he died a helf hour later. It is supposed that Ledbetter fell through the elevator, not noticing the opening. The opening is usually protected by placing barrels around it, but one of them in some way was moved yesterday, and this was the cause of the accident. He lived on Gartrell street, and leaves a wife and five chil, dren.
